REVOLUTION GIVES NEW GOVERNMENT TO CUBA

TEXAS COAST STORM CAUSES GREAT LOSSES

First Meagre Reports From Southern Shore of State Along Gulf of Mexico Tell of Widespread Damage

Not Known How Many People Killed

Associated Press.
Houston, Texas, Sept. 5.—Staggering property damage and heavy loss of life from the tropical hurricane that hammered the lower Rio Grande valley for several hours was indicated to-day by first meagre reports from the stricken area.

Winds of eighty miles an hour or more began to blow in the Brownsville sector about last midnight and were reported still howling furiously this morning.

Tremendous seas piled up by the wind caused appalling property damage from Bay City, Texas, to the Rio Grande.

Grave fears were felt for a score or more persons marooned on low-lying islands along the coast.

The weather observer at Rockport said the damage there would be at least $1,000,000 to small craft and cottages along the waterfront.

Corpus Christi, Tex., Sept. 5.—Surging waves from a high tide swept through the lower streets of Corpus Christi's business district early to-day as J. P. McAuliffe, government weather forecaster, predicted "the worst is yet to come" from a tropical hurricane which lashed the city through the night.

"The water is four feet deep over the north beach resort peninsula," he said, "and is running waist deep over Chapparral Street, a block back from the waterfront."

McAuliffe predicted the water would be several feet deep in the entire business district by noon.

A section 250 feet long had been washed out of the causeway connecting Corpus Christi with the San Antonio-Houston highway, across an arm of Corpus Christi Bay. The only road open was by way of Alice.

An early survey of the havoc revealed no loss of life here. The north (Turn to Page 2, Col. 8)

EXCHANGE DOLLAR TO-DAY 95 3/4 CENTS

New York, Sept. 5.—Canadian and British currencies closed with small gains on the New York Foreign Exchange market to-day after losing the greater part of fairly wide advances scored at the opening.

The Canadian dollar advanced to 95 3/4 for a net gain of 1/4. The premium on United States funds was 4 1/2 per cent.

The pound finished at 4.56, up 1 1/2 cents from Saturday.

The French franc turned easy, closing .04 of a cent at 5.65 cents.

NOT QUITTING, SAYS TOLMIE

Has No Job in Sight at Ottawa and Will Stick to Premiership in B.C.

Electors Will Determine When He Is to Go Into Retirement, He Says

"The statement appearing in Victoria and Vancouver newspapers on Saturday to the effect that I had called a meeting of the Saanich Conservative executive for tomorrow and that at that meeting I would announce my retirement from the premiership is absolutely without foundation," said Premier Tolmie this morning.

"No meeting has been called by me and my retirement from the premiership is a question for the electors of the province to decide, not the press."

"I regret the necessity of making periodical denials of these false statements and only do so at this time to relieve the minds of many friends who read them and have called me on the telephone to ascertain the truth or otherwise of the reports."

"At no time during my conversations with Hon. Robert Weir, federal Minister of Agriculture, did we discuss politics," said the Premier, and the report that I am about to accept a post in the federal Department of Agriculture is just another one of those falsehoods I have been compelled to deny recently."

Mr. Weir was here last week and was a guest at Premier Tolmie's home. Newspaper reports linked the incident with the retirement of Premier Tolmie and his acceptance of a federal appointment.

W. O. Wallace, president of the Saanich Conservative Association, left Sunday morning on a motor trip to Eugene, Ore., and will not return until late in the week. Seen Sunday, Mr. Wallace also denied a meeting of the executive had been called for Wednesday.

COMMISSIONER TO SPEAK HERE

Sir William Clarke, high commissioner for the United Kingdom, who will arrive in Victoria next week, will be the guest speaker at meetings of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs, it was announced this morning.

Next Monday at 12:15 noon, he will address the men's club on "Five Crowded Years," while on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock he will speak to the women members. Both meetings will be held in the Empress Hotel.

Nova Scotia's New Cabinet Takes Office

Hon. A. L. Macdonald Becomes Premier and His Colleagues Are Sworn In

Halifax, Sept. 5.—Angus Lewis Macdonald, former college professor who made economy the foundation of his successful campaign for a Liberal government in Nova Scotia, was sworn in to-day with his cabinet by Lieut.-Governor Walter H. Covert.

The forty-three-year-old Premier, whose party was elected to twenty-two of the thirty seats in the Legislature after one of the most intensive campaigns in the history of the province, took the oath in the historic chamber of the old House of Assembly.

Personnel of the new government, elected to power August 22, is as follows:

Premier and Provincial Secretary: Hon. Angus Lewis Macdonald.
Minister of Highways: Hon. Alexander Sterling MacMillan.
Minister of Agriculture: John Andrew Macdonald.
Attorney-General: Hon. Josiah H. MacQuarrie.
Minister of Mines: Hon. Michael Dwyer.
Minister of Health: Hon. Frank Roy Davis, M.D.

The office of the Provincial Treasurer is combined with that of the Provincial Secretary, a custom followed before election of the late Harrington Government.

Many Theatres May Be Closed

Thirteen Independent Movie Producers at Hollywood Quit Under NRA Code

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 5.—Announcement was made yesterday on behalf of thirteen independent movie producers of Hollywood that they had given two weeks' notice to their 1,620 employees and told them to look for other jobs.

The notice was given Saturday, it was said, in anticipation of possible defeat in the independents' fight against Article 23 of the proposed movie industry code under the NRA, which would prohibit showing of two feature pictures on one bill.

If "double feature" exhibiting is barred, the independents say, they could not compete with major producers who serve theatres showing vaudeville or other programmes additional to one feature picture.

The statement from the offices of the independent association said sixty-three film exchanges and 2,100 theatres which have been handling independent pictures also were expected to give two weeks' notice to their employees to-day, many already having done so, and that the 1,400 theatres which have been showing double features may close, at least temporarily, if Article 23 is adopted as it stands.

Highlights of Sports Held on Labor Day

The accompanying pictures show some of the highlights in local sports on Labor Day. The top view shows the thrilling finish in the ten-mile Fenwick Cup bicycle race at Beacon Hill Park when Fred Carson, Vancouver, nosed out the decision by half a wheel over Leo Marchand, Vancouver.

Centre left, shows the finalists in the city amateur golf championship played at Uplands yesterday. Those in the group are, standing from left to right: Bob Morrison, Uplands, who captured his third city crown; William Wilkie, men's captain at Uplands, who officiated as referee, and Harold Pretty, seventy-year-old Uplands Junior who was runner-up to Morrison.

The two caddies are Bobby Ford, in front of Morrison, and "Red" McEwen.

Changes Boat, Hooks Beauty
Tom Love, Victoria, Lands Fifty-two-pound Salmon At Campbell River and Wins Tye Club Gold Button In Friend's Boat; W. Winter Catches Thirty-five Pounder at Brentwood.

For twelve years Arthur Buckle, Victoria, has been going to Campbell River in the hope of landing a salmon over fifty pounds and winning a Tye Club gold button.

Over the holiday he went fishing with his friend Tom Love.

"Let's change boats for luck," Mr. Buckle said after a period of unsuccessful fishing.

They changed boats. Mr. Love immediately landed a fifty-two-pound salmon and won the gold button. The fish was the second largest at Campbell River this year, and was taken on regulation tackle as laid down by the Tye Club.

Another fine catch was made at Brentwood, when Dr. W. Winter landed a thirty-five-pound spring salmon, and won himself a silver button of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

Dr. Winter hooked his prize fish with a number seven silver Wonder spoon on red and reel, using 450 feet of wire line with twelve ounces of weight.

A number of large catches were made at Brentwood over the holiday, where the fish are now running well.

Work-Found For MORE IN BRITAIN
London, Sept. 5.—With improved business conditions felt by more than half a dozen key industries, 650,000 British unemployed have found work during the last year, according to statistics made known to-day.

During the month ended August 21, unemployment figures showed a drop of 31,038, with the total number employed having increased 57,000. Unemployed in England now total 2,411,137.

Hotels and boarding houses report a pick-up in business.

Coup d'etat Throws Out Cespedes And Puts In Commission of Radicals

VISCOUNT GREY GROWS WEAKER

Christon Bank, Eng., Sept. 5.—An official bulletin this morning said Viscount Grey of Fallodon, one-time British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, gravely ill for days, "had a quiet night, although he is weaker and still unconscious."

At his home it was said the Viscount had been in a state of coma for more than twenty-four hours, with his strength gradually ebbing away.

JAIL BREAKER RECAPTURED

Harvey Bailey Caught After Wild Four-hour Auto Chase in Oklahoma

Head of Anti-gangster Campaign Says He Will Never Escape Again

Associated Press.
Ardmore, Okla., Sept. 5.—Harvey Bailey, one of the most desperate criminals in the United States, was safe in a jail cell to-day, having been recaptured at the end of a wild automobile chase here yesterday, four hours after he had made a sensational escape from the county jail at Dallas, Tex., by using a smuggled pistol.

Cornered in a smashed sedan on a main intersection of this southern city, the accused leader of the $200,000 kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, and one of the asserted machine gunners in the slaying of four officers and Frank Nash, federal convict, in Kansas City, June 17, surrendered quietly to three Ardmore policemen.

Bailey made no move toward the pistol that lay on a seat beside him.

When the jail car he had stolen at Dallas whirled round a corner and smashed into a curb, Bailey found himself looking into the cold muzzles of three Ardmore police pistols.

By his side, protesting "I'm a killer," sat Nick Tresp, Dallas jail turnkey, whom Bailey had kidnapped.

It was Tresp's car that was wrecked beside the curb.

"When we get where we are going," Bailey had told Tresp during the wild ride, "I'll give you your car and some money and let you go back."

Tresp was released by the Ardmore officers as soon as he could be identified and Bailey was taken to jail, later to be turned over to federal authorities.

Plans for the organization of independent candidates seeking seats in the B.C. Legislature so they will fight the campaign as a cohesive group have been launched and the first meeting in an attempt to reach this objective will probably be held in Vancouver next week.

Leaders of the independents planning to organize, say they do not intend to form a party or bind one another as to policy. They plan to unite on the basic position of non-party government. If they dominate the next Legislature they plan to support for premier the best available man, regardless of his past party affiliations, provided he will scrap a non-party government and write the party machines.

R. W. Bruhn and W. A. McKenzie, ex-conservative ministers, Col. Fred Lister, ex-chairman of the Conservative caucus, Colonel W. W. Foster, president of the B.C. Sudden Move Made by Several Groups Proves Too Strong for Provisional Government in Office Less Than Month; Cespedes Gives Up Hope When Strategic Streets in Havana Seized by Soldiers; No Bloodshed Reported

Associated Press.
Havana, Sept. 5.—The government of Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, which succeeded the deposed Machado regime less than a month ago, resigned this afternoon and turned the government over to a revolutionary junta representing radical students and army non-commissioned officers.

A commission of five men, named by the extreme left wing radicals, will rule Cuba.

The change in government was effected amid scenes of turbulent confusion, but there was no bloodshed. Disappointed and disillusioned, Dr. de Cespedes left the Presidential Palace after he had bowed to the opposition, and returned to the home he had left twenty-four days ago to become President.

RESIGNED IN BODY
Members of the De Cespedes coalition cabinet resigned in a body at a conference in the Presidential Palace at which the demands of the Junta were presented. It was understood the President submitted no formal resignation for himself, but merely indicated at the meeting he would surrender his office.

"It's all over," said Dr. Jose Manuel Fresno, Secretary of Sanitation under Dr. de Cespedes. "We have turned our government over to the revolutionary Junta."

NEW COMMISSIONERS
The new commission is composed of Guillermo Portela, forty-eight, professor of penal law in Havana University. He was educated in Germany.

Jose Izquierdo, forty, lawyer, long an opponent of Machado, author of a plan for land division which President de Cespedes has been studying.

Ramon Grau San Martin, forty-five, professor of anatomy in Havana University.

Porfirio Franco, forty-five, a banker, Sergio Calbo, thirty-nine, magazine editor and leader of the youth movement, who headed the unsuccessful revolt in Gibara in 1931.

The Junta bitterly criticized what was described as the fascist trend of the ABC society. The rift between the ABC radicals and the more conservative group of that organization meant an important break-up in the coalition which had been backing President de Cespedes.

The Junta, which arrested Chief of Staff Gonzalez del Real and other officials at the time of the uprising, yesterday and to-day, later released them when they declared they were in sympathy with the revolutionary programme.

Sergeant Angel Gonzales was named chief of staff.

RESPONSIBILITY PASSES
President de Cespedes made a statement after a conference at the Presidential Palace, to which he had been hastily summoned from the interior after the opposition rose against him yesterday evening.

Ford Still Silent On His NRA Stand

Belief Grows in Detroit Big Auto Manufacturing Company Will Proceed Without "Blue Eagle"

Associated Press.
Detroit, Sept. 5.—Although lacking official confirmation, it became known to-day an upward readjustment of wages is under way in the Ford Motor Company's plant here.

It was understood many employees who heretofore received $1 a day, the minimum wage, now are receiving $1.50 a day.

Two months ago the Ford Motor Company adopted the five-day week, and previously it had adopted the $1-a-day minimum wage.

Edsel Ford, president of the company and son of its founder, was ending his vacation at Seal Harbor, Me., where he has consistently refused to discuss matters of policy. He is expected back to-morrow.

Ford executives said they could shed no light on the question, "What will Ford do?"

NO STATEMENT
Big Bay, Mich., Sept. 5.—The birds of the forest, but no "blue eagles," flew around the sixteen-room "cabin" where Henry Ford continued his north woods vacation to-day, far removed from the outside world and its discussion of his status as a "hold out" from the NRA automobile code, now in effect.

FISH PUTS MOTOR OUT OF OPERATION

Saskatoon, Sept. 5.—Here's another prize fish story.

Evidently thinking it saw a new type of lure, a pike struck at the whirling propeller of J. M. Stevenson's outboard motor in Emma Lake, summer resort near Prince Albert National Park.

The contact was of such force as to break the shear-pin and temporarily disable the motor.

SPEEDBOAT SERIES WON BY GAR WOOD

Second Race on St. Clair River Captured By Miss America X, But Margin Over Scott-Paine's Miss Britain III Only 22.35 Seconds

By David J. Wilke, Associated Press Staff Writer
Marine City, Mich., Sept. 5.—Gar Wood will keep the bronze Harmsworth plaque, which symbolizes the world speedboat championship, in the United States for at least another year, in the closest finish ever seen in a Harmsworth event he defeated Hubert Scott-Paine, British challenger, yesterday in the second race of the 1933 international series.

Wood's margin of victory was 22.35 seconds, but the closeness of the finish did not furnish thrills of the race as much as did the driving of the British pilot in his small metal challenger, Miss Britain III. Time and again during the thirty-five nautical miles the British craft was pursuing Wood's Miss America X, he seemed in imminent danger of overtaking.

Opinions Welcomed At Liberal School

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King Speaks at Port Hope, Ont.; McGill Professors Discuss Foreign Policy and Trade

Port Hope, Ont., Sept. 5.—A "Liberal summer conference" was in progress here to-day. Opened yesterday, the conference has attacked such problems as Canada's foreign policy, tariffs and national reconstruction and heard speakers prominent in Canadian and United States affairs.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, delivered a brief address yesterday.

In opening the conference, Hon. Vincent Massey, Dominion Liberal organizer and former Canadian Minister to the United States, emphasized the unique character of the conference. It represented, he said, something entirely new in Canada, even in North America. Although held under Liberal Party auspices, the conference counted among those registered, several members of the Conservative and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation parties.

"The conference is the effect of a group of individuals of diversified views, and whatever opinions are expressed here, they will represent only individual points of view," Mr. Massey said.

OPINIONS WELCOMED
Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal Party, declared that while the conference was devoid of official character, nevertheless the Liberal Party would be more than grateful for the opinions that must emerge from the debates and discussions.

Liberals did not stand for any rigid body of doctrine, Mr. King said. It was rather an attitude of mind and one that had great regard for the human element, aiming at the full development of the individual. "The national life of the country," he said, "had to be shaped the individual would be surrounded by conditions that aided in

"As foundation member of the Federation in B.C., our organization makes no apology for zealously assuming guardianship of the just infant," says the Socialist president in B.C., in speaking of the C.C.F., "but never have the most unrelenting among us declared that our guardianship or control would extend beyond the date of the first provincial convention."

"The suffering of the common people under capitalism and the absent hope for a renaissance of the profit-making system, demands of all of us all that unity of action shall complement unity of purpose in this challenge to the old order," Mr. Turner comments.

W. A. Pritchard, provincial president of the C.C.F., and a Socialist leader in British Columbia for many years, places emphasis on the comments of the Socialist president to prove the C.C.F. Socialist harmony.

The regular monthly meeting of the central executive of the Victoria Conservative Association will be held in the association rooms, Campbell Building, on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. F. A. Willis, president of the group, announces.

Mrs. J. Lewis has withdrawn as a C.C.F. candidate in Saanich, she announced today. "May I tell my many friends that I am not a C.C.F. candidate in Saanich. I will work for the C.C.F. in every way but will not be a nominee," Mrs. Lewis says in a letter to Political Paragraphs.

Mrs. Lewis also announces a meeting to organize Saanich for the C.C.F. will be held in St. Mary's Hall, Cloverdale, next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. T. Guy Sheppard and V. R. Midgley, Victoria C.C.F. candidates, will speak.

W. O. Wallace, of Saanich, was unanimously elected president of the Nanaimo Federal Conservative Association at the annual meeting of that organization held in Duncan.

Other officers elected were: F. S. Cunliffe, Nanaimo, first vice-president; Charles O'Neill, Duncan, second vice-president; W. H. Carr, Gordon Head, secretary; Roger Wright, Ladysmith, treasurer; and S. Heald, Shawnigan, and A. S. Sherrard, Scotch, auditors. Charles O'Neill was elected president.

Jobless Ex-service Men Protest New Camp Order

OUSTED IN CUBA

Canadian Press
Calgary, Sept. 5.—Objections poured into Canadian Legion and Imperial Veterans' headquarters here today when all single ex-service men on relief, including those drawing disability pensions, were ordered to have been ordered to report at the government employment offices for the purpose of being sent to camps under supervision of Military District Number 13.

A number of the ex-servicemen declared themselves unfit for camp life. They also pointed out that they were destitute and would be unable to live without relief. It was stated their relief tickets had been withdrawn along with the order to report for camp duty.

The ex-servicemen's organizations protested to Ottawa regarding the camp order. Major C. A. Bell, district administrator of the Department of Pensions and National Health, declared only those pensioners found physically fit were being sent to the camps. Legion officials, however, maintained there were great numbers, passed as fit, who were decidedly the opposite.

Wood's fastest lap was his third, when he established a top speed of 89.339 statute miles an hour. Miss Britain's fastest 87.215 miles an hour.

The time for the race was: Miss America X, 27.48.92, an average of 86.937; Miss Britain III, 28.11.25, an average of 87.789 statute miles an hour.

Wood's 22.35-second victory yesterday was the closest since he first won the trophy in the Cobscook Bay in 1920. At that time he won by a margin of 34 seconds over another United States entry, Miss Detroit, IV.

TRIBUTE TO SCOTT-PAINE

"We had a wonderful race from our standpoint, the hardest race we ever had in the Harnsworth Trophy," said Pilot Wood. "Scott-Paine drove a wonderful race. He had a lot of nerve to press his boat the way he did. He told me he had it wide open."

NOT AT HIGHER SPEEDS
"No, we never had Miss America wide open," said Pilot Wood. "I gave the gun on the last straightaway for just a moment. The highest we turned over was 87.215 miles an hour."

For a time there was much talk of possible intervention by United States under the Platt amendment, which is part of the Cuban constitution. It legalizes such intervention.

The coup d'état places power in the hands of the extreme Radical Socialists, representing student groups, the A.B.C. Revolutionary Society, which was largely instrumental in the overthrow of Machado, and certain university professors.

Members of the new regime's commission asserted they did not want to hold their positions permanently, but would govern only until constitutional elections should select their successors.

By John P. McKnight, Associated Press Correspondent
Havana, Sept. 5.—A swift and bloodless coup d'état of soldiers, sailors and national police early today, gave Cuba a new government.

Supported by the powerful students' group and the A.B.C. Secret Society, who demand a completely revolutionary government, radical private, corporate and sergeants of the army and non-commissioned officers and enlisted men of the navy seized control of the armed forces, placed machine guns at strategic points, and arrested the president and his cabinet.

The mutiny was sudden and dramatic. Sergeant Fulgencio Batista, the leader, and his forces, announced the rebellion and then started the revolt.

They immediately deployed machine guns throughout the city and declared the leader for the day. The got it amid the cheers of the crowd.

BARRACKS SEIZED
The insurrectionists seized all barracks in and about Havana. All commissioned officers were either arrested or sent under guard to their homes. In all, they said, thirty officers were detained.

War Minister Ferrer, in an interview granted an Associated Press representative, attributed the present movement to the desire of the army to see the proposed pay cuts and the suggested reduction in army personnel.

TO SUMMON ASSEMBLY
The proclamation, dated at Camp Columbia, where the movement started and where the forces were gathered, said the principal purpose of the movement aimed at an economic reconstruction of the nation and a political reorganization based on a constitutional assembly, respect for foreign obligations, and the immediate formation of courts.

Ganauad said the movement was not a rebellion, but a revolution. He said, "We were left to the people."

Meanwhile, the possibility grew that Cuba's independence would not be threatened provided any change of government would be effected without bloodshed.

Former Lieutenant Laurent was named chief of the police force by the insurrectionists. He immediately ordered the arrest of Borrell.

Havana was thrown into a state of intense excitement as news of the fast developments spread.

AUTOS DASH THROUGH STREETS
Automobiles were driven at high speed through the city carrying men who shouted "Viva" and "New Revolution" and fired into the air.

Some citizens entered the army barracks and carried out machine guns and rifles.

The insurrectionists instituted what was considered tantamount to censorship, with soldiers and sailors calling on the new crop to enable them to purchase the necessities of life during the coming winter.

"I have faithfully fulfilled the programme of the revolution of the people," he said with great agitation. "Now it is time for others to assume responsibility. Responsibility will be theirs before history."

The conference with the President was attended by leaders of the revolutionary junta who demanded he turn over the government to them.

"We have assumed power and have constituted a government," Jose Riquelme, a member of the revolutionary commission of five, announced at the conclusion of the meeting with Dr. de Cespedes.

"All of the commissioners will serve with equal powers except that Guillermo Portela will be the nominal President before the plenipotentiary corps."

Havana, Sept. 5.—A swift and bloodless coup d'état of soldiers, sailors and national police early today, gave Cuba a new government.

Supported by the powerful students' group and the A.B.C. Secret Society, who demand a completely revolutionary government, radical private, corporate and sergeants of the army and non-commissioned officers and enlisted men of the navy seized control of the armed forces, placed machine guns at strategic points, and arrested the president and his cabinet.

The mutiny was sudden and dramatic. Sergeant Fulgencio Batista, the leader, and his forces, announced the rebellion and then started the revolt.

They immediately deployed machine guns throughout the city and declared the leader for the day. The got it amid the cheers of the crowd.

BARRACKS SEIZED
The insurrectionists seized all barracks in and about Havana. All commissioned officers were either arrested or sent under guard to their homes. In all, they said, thirty officers were detained.

War Minister Ferrer, in an interview granted an Associated Press representative, attributed the present movement to the desire of the army to see the proposed pay cuts and the suggested reduction in army personnel.

TO SUMMON ASSEMBLY
The proclamation, dated at Camp Columbia, where the movement started and where the forces were gathered, said the principal purpose of the movement aimed at an economic reconstruction of the nation and a political reorganization based on a constitutional assembly, respect for foreign obligations, and the immediate formation of courts.

Ganauad said the movement was not a rebellion, but a revolution. He said, "We were left to the people."

Meanwhile, the possibility grew that Cuba's independence would not be threatened provided any change of government would be effected without bloodshed.

Former Lieutenant Laurent was named chief of the police force by the insurrectionists. He immediately ordered the arrest of Borrell.

Havana was thrown into a state of intense excitement as news of the fast developments spread.

AUTOS DASH THROUGH STREETS
Automobiles were driven at high speed through the city carrying men who shouted "Viva" and "New Revolution" and fired into the air.

Some citizens entered the army barracks and carried out machine guns and rifles.

The insurrectionists instituted what was considered tantamount to censorship, with soldiers and sailors calling on the new crop to enable them to purchase the necessities of life during the coming winter.

Batista in a later manifesto declared

ONTARIO TOWN SCENE OF FIRE

Foxborough, Ont., Sept. 5.—Breaking out in a garage at midnight on the main street of this village, fire destroyed ten buildings, including two general stores. Firemen, called from Belleville and Stirling fought the flames all night with villagers. The flames all night with villagers. The flames all night with villagers.

The blaze destroyed the centre of the village, leveling frame dwellings and other buildings.

AT SANTIAGO
Santiago, Cuba, Sept. 5.—The army rallied here today, imprisoning officers and delivering from jail soldiers accused by civil authorities under the Machado rule.

The revolutionaries ousted the governor and there was considerable shooting, but no one was wounded.

UNITED STATES SENDS WARSHIPS
Washington, Sept. 5.—Warships of the United States were ordered to Cuba today because of the coup d'état there.

At least three destroyers were dispatched to protect United States lives and property from danger in threatened strife precipitated by the revolt of the army against the new Provisional Government.

This was the second time in a matter of weeks war vessels had been sent to the Caribbean Sea.

The first time being during the disturbances in connection with overthrow of the Machado government.

READY TO LAND
Secretary of State Cordell Hull told reporters that the United States was ready to land troops in Cuba.

Forces of marines and blue-jackets capable of providing a respectable landing force are aboard the warcraft.

It was emphasized intervention in Cuban affairs by this country was not expected to protect foreign lives and property.

Secretary Hull said he believed the United States had carried from 75 to 100 marines.

FOREIGN POLICY
Strong criticism of Canada's foreign policy was voiced by Professor P. E. Corbett of McGill University, Montreal, who deplored factors he said appeared to govern selection of Canada's representatives to the League of Nations.

The professor, who held Canada's diplomatic reputation depended largely on impressions created at Geneva, said he was "greatly disappointed" that the Swiss city had left him with opinions far from complimentary to Canada.

"You must excuse me if I do not mean words," he said, "but we have sent to Geneva far more than our share of persons who have left an impression of ignorance and stupidity."

He asked if it were true appointments to Canada's representation before the League were made for domestic political purposes.

He accused the Dominion of being the first country to try itself to the process of attrition in connection with the toning down of Article 10 of the League covenant by moving the article to be deleted.

"No Canadian government," he said, "was willing to endure the risk of war to protect the territorial integrity of those nations who looked on this article as the charter of their liberties."

He charged the League and its covenant had been one of the outstanding tragic comedies of the last thirteen years.

WITHOUT EXPERIENCE
Canada had stepped into the realm of international affairs without any prior experience, and in 1919 had demanded a full share in the operation of the proposed League of Nations, said Dr. Corbett.

PUBLIC OPINION

Washington, Sept. 5.—Public opinion today apparently was the first chosen by President Roosevelt's recovery administration for deciding the case of Henry Ford's conspicuous absence from NRA membership.

As the rest of United States automobile industry began its first official work day under the "blue eagle," NRA leaders evidenced every intention for the present, at least, of "letting nature take its course" with Ford, the industrial campaign's first major hold-out.

MARK REED OF SEATTLE DIES

Well Known as Lumberman and Former Figure in Politics

Seattle, Sept. 5.—Mark Reed, well-known lumberman and former political power in this state, died here to-day following a long illness and an operation performed several days ago.
He lapsed into unconsciousness yesterday evening after steadily sinking throughout the day. Physicians remained at his bedside throughout the night, as did Mrs. Reed and their two sons, Frank and William G. Reed.
Mr. Reed underwent an abdominal operation August 25, after entering the hospital about a month ago. This followed his return here from Washington, D.C., where he was "severely fatigued" from NRA lumber code conferences.
Although the noted political figure and former lumberjack rallied from the shock of the operation, he suffered a series of relapses and early yesterday sank into a semi-consciousness.
Physicians said Mr. Reed passed away at 7:05 a.m.
He was born in Olympia, Wash., December 23, 1866.

IN BALLOON RACE

Lieutenant-Commander T. W. G. Settle, whose balloon, an entry in the big race started from Chicago, landed safely yesterday evening on the shore of Long Island Sound.

Reported Negotiations and Positions of Canada Among Subjects Debated By Ministers To-day

London, Sept. 5.—It is reported the question of Anglo-Russian trade negotiations was among the matters discussed by the cabinet to-day at its first meeting since Parliament adjourned in July. Negotiations were suspended some weeks ago.

The London Morning Post said one of the difficulties in the way of resumption was the reported declaration of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada unless the United Kingdom should honor article 21 of the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement, the whole of the agreement might be jeopardized. Mr. Bennett was reported to have called on the British Government to take action to curb Russian imports.

Article 21 deals with the protection of empire produce from state-aided dumping.

IRAQ PROBLEM

London, Sept. 5.—Cabinet members were summoned to-day for their first meeting since adjournment of Parliament in July, with the British attitude toward the Iraq problem a subject understood to be one of the subjects on their programme.

A report on treatment of Assyrian Christians in Iraq, from Mr. Francis Humphreys, recently returned to Baghdad from London, was expected to be available for consideration.

The business before the cabinet was said to involve British foreign policy, particularly what points of view the government will adopt concerning Iraq at the League of Nations Council meeting in Geneva September 9, and a disarmament policy at the forthcoming conference.

More than 600 Assyrian Christians were reported last month to have been killed in conflict with Kurds and Iraq forces in northern Iraq. Great Britain as the former mandatory power over the young nation, asked an investigation and otherwise sought to effect peace.

King Feisal of Iraq, who now is at Berne, Switzerland, in an interview in a London newspaper to-day, denied reports of maltreatment of Assyrian Christians.

GREAT CROWD GREETED BAND

Thousands of Vancouver People Give Royal Welcome to Kitsilano Boys' Band

Vancouver, Sept. 5.—A crowd which started gathering three hours before train time and swelled to 5,000 people greeted the Vancouver Kitsilano Boys' Band as they returned from the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, where they won the championship of Class D bands in competition with leading boys' bands from all parts of the world.

Three Vancouver bands joined in the welcome, providing concerts on the platform and at various points throughout the station and keeping the big crowd entertained until the triumphant arrival of the world's champions. City, Provincial and Mounted Police assisted railway officers in keeping order and protecting the youthful musicians from being mobbed by well-meaning admirers.

A welcome such as Vancouver reserves for Percy Williams and Jimmy McLarnin was accorded the thirty young bandmen and their popular leader, Arthur W. Delamont, when they stepped from their special car aboard the "Dominion Limited." The crowd filled the platform, hundreds more stood back in the train sheds, along the Pier D ramp; the concourse of the station upstairs was jammed to capacity and the streets in the vicinity of the station overflowed with people.

Through the throng, after Mayor Taylor's official civic greetings, police escorted Bandmaster Delamont and his boys as a row of autos and they were whisked off to their homes. In the afternoon they were guests of honor at the twenty-fourth Canada Pacific Exhibition.

En route to and from Chicago, the Kitsilano Band played concerts at Kamloops, Revelstoke, Banff, Moose Jaw and Winnipeg, making the rounds of new friends in western Canada. Now world's champions in their class, they won the Canadian championship at Toronto Exhibition in 1931, and for the last three years have been Pacific Northwest and British Columbia champions.

HOLIDAY CROWD SEES BUSH FIRE

Associated Press
Monte Rio, Calif., Sept. 5.—Sweeping up the under-dry, heavily-wooded hillsides back of this resort town, fire started by an exploding gasoline stove yesterday burned eleven cottages in two hours and caused a near panic among the largest vacation crowd of the season.

As the flames crackled high on the hillsides, vacation bathers swarmed back to their cabins from the Russian River beaches, and darted about, gathering up possessions as rapidly as possible, vacating the cottages in the path of the blast.

By 1 p.m. fire crews of several hundred mustered from nearby towns, from the C.C.C. camp at Armstrong Grove and from the vacationists themselves had the blaze under control.

High above the earth, the air becomes so thin that sound waves cannot travel.

Urges New Basis For Provincial Subsidies

Port Hope, Ont., Sept. 5.—A periodical revision of subsidies paid by the Dominion to the provinces to be made before a non-political board or commission, and the fields of taxation between the two delimited with a view to securing for the provinces control over more elastic sources of revenue, were suggestions advanced at a round-table conference yesterday by Professor Norman McL. Rogers of Queen's University, Kingston, at the Liberal Summer School here. Professor Rogers led the discussion on the subject of the financial relations between the Dominion and the provinces.

Traversing the history of subsidies, the speaker found these at the moment to be in a state of disorder, without any regard for the original provisions which authorized them. He was particularly severe on the political evils developed out of the system.

"It has become increasingly apparent in recent years the system itself is open to the gravest abuses and ought to be altered at the earliest opportunity," said the speaker.

POLICE BREAK UP BIG CROWD

Unauthorized Labor Day Meeting Not Permitted in Stanley Park, Vancouver

Vancouver, Sept. 5.—Two persons were injured and two arrested yesterday afternoon when a large crowd attempted to hold a march, labelled a "Labor Day Parade" on West Georgia Street and a meeting in Stanley Park.

Those injured were treated in St. Paul's Hospital for cuts about the heads.

One of the arrested men was charged with creating a disturbance and the other with carrying an offensive weapon, namely a large stone.

Police had been warned of an attempt to parade from Burrard and Georgia streets to Stanley Park and a large body of officers from the city, R.C.M.P., Burnaby, New Westminster and provincial forces was held in reserve to prevent any demonstration or disorder.

Shortly after 2 p.m. a large crowd collected near the C.N.R. hotel on Georgia Street and when an attempt was made to form a parade mounted officers dispersed the people. In the melee that followed the two men were injured.

No further attempt was made to parade, but members of the crowd of several thousand straggled into Stanley Park, their number being augmented by hundreds of onlookers.

INTO THE BUSH
Near the pavilion in the park a man endeavored to start a meeting, but a squad of officers drove him and his followers into the bush. A few minutes later a crowd commenced hurling stones at the officers, but that crowd was quickly broken up. It was at that time the two men were taken into custody. One of the two received injuries on his head, but it is not known whether he was struck during the fight or ran against a tree in his efforts to avoid the officers. Several others were slightly injured by running into obstacles as they fled from the police.

A downpour of rain completed the work of the police in driving the would-be demonstrators from the park. Later a smaller crowd attempted to gather at Victory Square, but abandoned the project when they found themselves facing a body of mounted and foot patrolmen.

The police reserves were led in person by Chief John Cameron.

HORSES SWIM IN OREGON LAKE

Associated Press
Portland, Ore., Sept. 5.—Just a plough horse twenty-four hours ago, "Old Dobbin" was a champion to-day.

For "Old Dobbin" won the first equine swimming contest ever held in this section and sponsors of the Oswego Lake Labor Day regatta proclaimed him the titleholder of the northwest.

As the horses lined up on the bank for the start, several entries from riding academies, sleek and shiny, pranced about before a capacity audience.

"Old Dobbin" and another of his kind stood steady, paying little attention to the proceedings.

Riders took their places on the various mounts, the starter's gun boomed and the horses were urged into the water. The race course was to a buoy, several hundred feet from shore and back.

"Old Dobbin" needed little urging. With the same steadiness he had shown on shore, the broad-backed work horse went into the lead and he was never headed.

Communist Groups Start Strikes in Cuban City; Troops Fire in Streets

Associated Press
Santiago, Cuba, Sept. 5.—Groups of women armed with clubs were scouring this city to-day, attacking strike breakers as several communist-organized strikes created disorder.

Early Monday two civilians and one soldier were killed in a gun battle. Tension was at a high pitch in Santiago and new outbreaks of trouble were feared. Many merchants failed to open their doors.

The army took possession of the streets, firing frequently to clear off traffic. Several persons were wounded.

Among the striking groups were cooks, house servants, street car men, dock workers and construction workers. A general strike was feared.

BUYERS' CAMPAIGN IN UNITED STATES

Associated Press
Chicago, Sept. 5.—One of the greatest Labor Day throngs in Chicago's history yesterday heard Hugh S. Johnson, United States recovery administrator, appeal for a nation-wide consumers' buying campaign.

Addressing a throng of 250,000 through a system of loud speakers that carried his message to every corner of the Century of Progress Exposition grounds, Brig.-Gen. Johnson assured his listeners a federally-directed national campaign would start after September 20 to influence citizens to buy freely.

"We shall begin a campaign," he said, "to try to convince the people of the need to buy freely—not as a patriotic duty but as a prudent use of money."

LABOR ORGANIZATION
Akron, O., Sept. 4.—Court action against violators of NRA collective bargaining provisions was threatened to-day by William Green as he reminded employers "labor had the right to organize 100 per cent without interference or restraint."

The president of the American Federation of Labor asserted the right to organize is now "part of the law of the land" and announced the organization's intention "to invoke punishment through proper court procedure, on those employers who are charged with and found guilty of violating the law."

DRIFTING ALONG

Mr. Bennett's observation in a speech recently delivered in Montreal that Canada can not afford to experiment with higher wages and shorter working hours is likely to dog him for a long time. His own special panacea, a tariff wall which now reaches almost to the heavens, has failed lamentably, as it was bound to do, and he has nothing else to offer. Apparently he intends to continue to fold his arms in inaction and, with Oriental fatalism, drift with the tide no matter where it takes the country.

In times like these whatever else a country can not afford to do, it can not afford to do nothing. Governments are put in office to do something, and if one expedient fails to try another. The high protectionist prescription failed in Canada because it was based upon the silly theory that a country could sell without buying, that it could prohibit imports and continue to maintain its exports. Canada's trade to-day has shrunk by two-thirds, and our unemployment problem is worse than it was a year ago. Mr. Bennett's solution is as dead as Julius Caesar, and the pity of it is that he has nothing else in his mind.

If Mr. Roosevelt had been afflicted with the temperament and viewpoint of Mr. Bennett the United States would have fallen into a complete economic collapse. He took office when conditions were at their lowest ebb. He surrounded himself with the ablest minds he could enlist, and immediately engaged in a drastic programme of rehabilitation which embraced a score of expedients. In the main his plan aims at the improvement of the condition of the plain people, who comprise nine-tenths of the population. He knows—what Mr. Bennett seems incapable of realizing—that if the purchasing power of the general body of the public is increased the social order will be improved. The Canadian Premier, on the other hand, believes that if the financial condition of an influential minority is bettered the majority will profit, a hopeless conception as the record abundantly shows.

The Roosevelt plan of higher purchasing power for the general public is fraught with grave difficulty, but it is making marked headway. A recent report of Duff and Bradstreet's agency reports a definite improvement in numerous directions. Two millions of unemployed have been put to work, and there is an upward trend in wholesale and retail business generally throughout the country. Naturally many powerful privileged interests, and the Republican party traditionally allied to them, are opposing the programme since it involves principles to which they always have been antagonistic, but in the main the general public is behind it and for that reason it is inevitably bound to succeed.

Incidentally, the programme also involves the recapitalization of the country's economic structure on a new basis. Oceans of water are being squeezed from corporation stocks, and Pro Bono Publico for the first time in many years is getting a run for his money. In any case, something concrete and constructive is being done by Washington, and a psychology dominated by optimism has developed in the republic, a sentiment which can absorb any mistake of policy and administration and the failure of any of the Roosevelt plans. What is Ottawa doing? What solitary expedient has Mr. Bennett to offer in succession to the thoroughly discredited policy of tariff boosting?

A PRESIDENT'S POWER

A Virginia coal mine owner, irritated because his employees insisted on joining unions—as they are entitled to do, under the Industrial Recovery Act—is said to have declared angrily that "neither Franklin D. Roosevelt nor anyone else can run my mine."

It is not hard to understand the gentleman's state of mind; but someone ought to point out to him that he made a pretty broad statement which might, just conceivably, have to be taken back some day.

More than a quarter of a century ago, there was a Roosevelt in the White House, and he came within an inch or so of demonstrating that the President can run any coal mines he pleases. He was ready to march the army in and operate the mines himself, to break a strike deadlock; the operators, however, yielded, and he did not have to.

To-day's emergency is more serious than that of twenty-five years ago; and the present Roosevelt seems quite as ready to take drastic measures as the other one was.

NEW SOCIAL PROBLEMS

There is a stirring of the political atmosphere in Britain. Even under the outward calm of the National government social and economic issues are significantly forcing themselves to the fore, as in other countries. The first clouds now on the horizon are accepted as indicative of storms to come.

Important because of its radical social implications, is the agitation now under way in the rural areas on the question of tithes. English farmers have been causing scenes in their refusal to pay them any longer. These tithes date back to long before the Reformation. They were constituted as a charge on land for the upkeep of the church. Henry VIII changed the church in England, but did not do away with tithing. Since his time, the tithe has remained a fixed charge on large areas of land for the benefit of the established church, the universities or investors to whom the privilege had been sold. The tithe was originally paid in the form of one-tenth of the crop. But in 1837 to stabilize the income for the recipients, an act of Parliament substituted an annual payment in money instead of kind.

The tithe cash rate was last set in 1925. That was a year of high produce prices, when land was more valuable and its rent higher. Since then, farm income in England, as in other countries, has fallen by more than one-half. Affected by the farmers' challenge of this age-old charge on their production, is an annual tithe total of $10,000,000 for the Church of England, for the upkeep of its clergy and property, and $5,000,000 for the universities or for private holders who have bought the right to collect as an investment. On a five per cent annual basis, this would represent a capital sum of $300,000,000, the foundations of which are now in jeopardy.

A bill for the relief of the tithepayers has been drafted for presentation at the next session of Parliament, thus precipitating a debate on a question that will go to the very fundamentals of capitalist society in England and the sanctity of inherited contracts.

Another issue London reports awaiting for Parliament is that of the depressed areas whose representatives have for a long time been discontented with their treatment. A Treasury grant has already been made to them, after a failure of a proposal by which the wealthier and less severely hit seaside and residential areas should help the poorer districts in these hard times. Despite the generally improving trend of trade, little impression has yet been made on the heavy trades, such as coal, iron and shipbuilding. It is these industries, which particularly affect the distressed areas, that are thus forced to ask for more help, with the approach of winter. Involved is the socialized principle of relieving.

In the case of both of these, the British people through the House of Commons will be facing problems symptomatic of the social restlessness that is sweeping the world.

ANOTHER INDEPENDENT

Mr. Reginald Hayward in announcing himself as an independent candidate for Victoria says he has lost confidence in the provincial government and therefore no longer can support it. Mr. Hayward would have been on stronger ground if he had proclaimed his independence in the Legislature two years ago, particularly when the government was running up deficits and spending thirty millions a year. The time to manifest political independence is when it is most effective, and that is when such an attitude can operate as a brake upon an administration when it is at the height of its power and recklessness. If those who followed the government in the House had taken the bit in their teeth in the early stages of its career, the taxpayers of British Columbia would have been immeasurably better off to-day and the Conservative party would not have disintegrated into a number of political elements, each of which seems to be ashamed to wear its label.

LIBERAL SUMMER CONFERENCE

The Liberal Summer Conference, which opens to-day, at Port Hope, Ont., is a recognition of the fact that the rapidly shifting events of the past few years have not only brought to light problems hitherto ignored but have also drawn within the range of government problems of a new order. As a result of this, the application of many political principles has become obscure and many political formulas which have served in the past have been rendered obsolete. The Summer Conference, the main theme of which is "Canada and the World Crisis," is therefore designed to direct organized thought to the present day problems of government in the widest sense of that word.

The method of the conference is to provide the fullest opportunity for informal and impartial discussion of the several economic and political aspects of the crisis, as regards its effects upon Canada as well as on the rest of the world. For this purpose the programme has been divided into the appropriate subjects, upon which lectures and addresses will be delivered by prominent authorities and round table discussions will be led by experts in the respective fields.

The conference is not predominantly academic in nature, nor yet is it absorbed with the routine details of political administration. Rather it aims at promoting the healthy union between precept and practice which the depression, if it has done nothing else, has shown to be the essential condition of any assured progress in the future. To this end, the membership is composed of representatives of liberal politics, of business, agriculture and the professions, as well as of the universities.

The conference is of an unofficial nature as far as partisan politics are concerned and it has no connection with any party organization. Although the members of the committee are Liberals and many members of the federal and provincial Liberal parties are expected to attend, liberal-minded men and women of all party affiliations are welcomed at the conference.

Lord Rothermere, head of the big newspaper dynasty founded by Lord Northcliffe, his brother, says Mr. Bennett can have a peerage any time he wants one. Talk of titular distinctions for Canadians now is about as savory to the Canadian people as a bad egg at the breakfast table.

ANGLO-AMERICAN PARTNERSHIP
 The Christian Science Monitor

Even should Britain not jump quickly into double harness with America in a price-raising endeavor there is great hope in the degree of understanding of the American position already expressed by Englishmen. Considering the fact that Americans—even the delegates to the Economic Conference—did not know until July 3 exactly where they were going, it is encouraging that British opinion had on July 10 so thoroughly sensed the American objective. The whole experience speaks volumes as to the possibilities of Anglo-American cooperation.

A THOUGHT

Hatred is the madness of the heart.—Byron.

Loose Ends

Concerning beet and blondes and politics—the Paritaniat views of an old lady out this way—the Christianizing of the poor heathen—and beach pyjamas in church.

By H. B. W.

BEEF AND BLONDES

AN INGENIOUS FELLOW has invented a system by which you can tell whether you are by instinct a Liberal, a Conservative or a C.C.P.-er. In Maclean's Magazine he explains that your party affiliations give no real picture of your natural state of politics. Instead, you are asked to propound a long list of personal questions to yourself, such as these: Do you like roasts beef? Do you like to drive at seventy miles an hour? Do you think that "sweet" is a disagreeable word? Do you prefer blondes? And so on. After you have answered about a hundred such queries you can ascertain, by noting down the answers and adding up the total, exactly where you belong in politics.

This is a good idea. It is certainly more sound than the prevailing system of describing a man as a Liberal because he belongs to a Liberal Association or as a Conservative because he supports the Toimie Government. If every voter in Canada would subject himself to an intelligence test of this sort the result, while it might be rather discouraging, would be useful. It would put people in their proper niches.

NO NOTION

AS IT IS, a large part of the Liberal voters have no notion of what Liberalism means. They have a vague idea only that it means lower tariffs. Likewise, a great part of the Conservative electorate thinks that Conservatism means the protection of home industries and higher wages. It has no idea of the extremely deep and respectable philosophy on which Conservatism is based, namely, that you can't trust the people. On the other hand, many a Liberal statesman has the same view and ought to be with the Tories.

Now comes the C.C.P. and the confusion is complete. For it is clear allusion to everyone that half the people in the C.C.P. probably more than half, haven't the faintest notion what it is about. Its strength, which will be formidable if the depression continues for a couple more years, is based on a natural protest against the existing system, and anyone who doesn't protest against it must be a millionaire or a madman.

But talk to the ordinary run of people who are cheering for Mr. Woodsworth and you will find that they have never stopped to consider socialism at all. They think that the C.C.P. will smash the Montreal gang, make the rich pay and help the poor, yet if you could ask every Canadian in the privacy of his home, and in strict confidence, whether he really wanted the government to run all business, I think you would find nine out of ten against it. But they cheer for socialism when it is presented with attractive trimmings and chocolate-coatings.

Still, it is always that way in politics. The real issues are seldom decided in elections. An election issue is raised, usually of little importance, a government is elected and then proceeds to do the important things that never were mentioned in the campaign. The technique of politics now-a-days, indeed, is not to reveal in advance what you will do at all if elected. Roosevelt was too wise to do it. He kept all his plans dark, knowing that if he revealed them he would not be elected. Canadian statesmen will do the same. Meanwhile, in preparation for the election, you might ask yourself whether you like roast beef, and driving at seventy miles an hour and blondes. Then you'll really know how you should vote.

As for American films, the Japanese and Chinese delegates at Banff complained that they give the Orient a distorted picture of the United States. That's too bad; but the Orientals can console themselves with this thought—the same films also give Americans a distorted picture of the United States. So far as distortion goes, we are all in the same boat.

HARD BREED

YOU WHO imagine that manners and morals have been swept away in the current of these times, harken to this, which happens to be true: Out our way is an old lady who makes a few dollars every autumn by selling her fruit. She is very poor and needs every cent she can extract from the old city dweller who comes out to buy her apples, pears and plums. Well, to-day a party came out from town and, after a swim at the beach, arrived at my friend's cottage. The flapper, who inquired about the fruit was still wearing her bathing suit, an interesting garment, distinguished to a great extent, by its absence. The old lady eyed her visitor with a cold eye for some minutes and then she made this immortal statement in a voice which could be heard for a long distance:

"Fruit I have to sell, yes. But poor as I be, no fruit of mine will be sold to a husky in a breech clout!" Then she slammed the door in the girl's face.

We are a hard, Puritanical breed out this way.

CHRISTIANITY

CHINESE AND Japanese delegates to the Institute of Pacific Relations at Banff complained recently against American films and missionaries as educational forces in the Orient. I should think they would. I should think an educated Oriental would be a little repelled or amused, according to his temperament, by the spectacle of this continent rigorously excluding Orientals by immigration laws and their goods by tariffs, and then exporting missionaries to preach the Christian religion to the heathen.

The poor missionary goes over there and proclaims the doctrines of loving kindness and universal brotherhood but his government at home stillifies him at every turn by working in direct opposition to these doctrines in all its laws and policies.

The final irony is afforded by the spectacle of American missionaries preaching peace and brotherly love to the Japanese while the United States builds a bigger navy in anticipation of a war with Japan.

In a newly still barbarian at heart and only newly-come out of caves, it's not practical to let the Orientals or their goods swarm in here, and none of us would stand for it; but why insult their intelligence by pretending that we are doing all this in a Christian spirit? Why try to Christianize the Orientals before we have Christianized ourselves?

As for American films, the Japanese and Chinese delegates at Banff complained that they give the Orient a distorted picture of the United States. That's too bad; but the Orientals can console themselves with this thought—the same films also give Americans a distorted picture of the United States. So far as distortion goes, we are all in the same boat.

BEACH PYJAMAS

YET OCCASIONALLY in a world torn by ill-will there comes a heartening sign of tolerance. In Canterbury Cathedral, for example, the authorities have removed the ban against women in beach pyjamas. Women from nearby seaside resorts will be permitted to enter the cathedral in beach pyjamas, says the dean, so long as they don't wear anything likely to attract undue attention. Nowadays, of course, beach pyjamas attract no attention at all. As a matter of fact, in a few years women wearing skirts in the summer will probably attract too much attention and will have to be kept out of the cathedral.

One recalls that when Chaucer's pilgrims went to Canterbury some of them wore costumes much more curious than even our hideous beach pyjamas. And in this Christian cathedral, if any man turned up in the garments of the Apostles, he would be turned out immediately. It all depends on what you are used to. More important, a church which admits beach pyjamas is likely to admit new ideas without which any institution perishes.

There is a considerable all-round increase this year in the number of scholars attending the city schools, the total enrolment so far this year being 2,770 as compared with the 2,552 of last year.

At a meeting of a score of the most enthusiastic football players in the city held at the Driard Hotel last evening, it was decided to form a rugby union which would include any teams which might be formed in the Victoria district that wished to enter W. ## THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Epitaphs

Cut deep into the stone
 The kindly words remain.
 Drifting wind and sun,
 And driving sleet and rain.
 Green dimesmer year by year,
 Until the strands are torn,
 To bend his head, to peer,
 To learn his name, those deeds.
 Such tender, selfish lines
 The grieving hearts wrote down
 That reading, one divine
 How love is each life's crown.
 But not on crypt or tomb
 Or grave where ivy creeps
 And ruddy roses bloom
 Above the one who sleeps
 In the true record set;
 But on the lives he knew,
 Who found him false or true!

RELIEF

To the Editor—We are prone to criticize, often unjustly, but there are times when matters of public interest should be generally known, giving an opportunity to the public to exercise the privilege of clarifying the situation. Those of our citizens who have been compelled to seek relief seem to be the "buck" of public bodies an endeavor to add further indignities to their already harassed condition. The regulations issued on August 16 over the signature of E. G. Snowden, city relief officer, is a masterpiece of ill-considered legislation. The relief committee have at last placed a premium on relief.

Prior to this new regulation a man on relief had the privilege of securing casual employment to the extent of $10 per month without it affecting his relief allowance. Under the new scheme if a man earns in a casual way—that is, he hustles a job and earns $4, the city now graciously relieves him of $3 for his pains. It also compels him to take 20 per cent of his food allowance in milk. While this is very essential, a good stew is certainly more filling. At least the average man thinks so, with all due respect to our city relief committee, who probably prefer a cut from the joint with two vegetables. Acts of this nature are simply adding fuel to an already smoldering crater.

I brought to the notice of His Worship the Mayor a few days ago the case of a widow with five of a family who are passing through extremely hard times. Two of the sons secured a couple of months' employment earlier in the year, one boy earning $1 per day, the other $2, with the usual deductions for income tax and compensation. Prior to this employment the young men had been out of work for a long time, but the city had to collect the road and poll-tax amounting to $14 at the first opportunity without consideration of the home these boys were trying to maintain. Is the joint of human kindness completely dried up in our city fathers?

We read recently of the Minimum Wage Board having collected $2,840 from dishonest employers. I wonder what the amount would be had the employees the courage to come forward to a necessary evidence? There are glaring cases in this city of girls having to work after business hours without pay. The fear of certain dismissal and pay boycott holds them in the bonds of slavery. Care has been taken by our legislators to remove, deliberately or otherwise, any teeth from many of our remedial laws so that government departments are lacking the necessary authority to prosecute.

"ABSOLUTE PURITY"

To the Editor—I was a visitor in Victoria last week-end and had the privilege of meeting with an assembly of friends. One of the topics of interest in the deep which I was asked to take up was a question which is of vital importance, but owing to one thing, to a seeming lack of time, was not fully or adequately answered. I would like to express a very little of my opinion regarding the question. It will be as brief as possible. The question of interest is "What is Absolute Purity?" I am not a member of the Oxford Group Movement, but I am sincerely interested in any individual or group who are earnestly desirous of doing good.

We use the word "pure" mostly, I think, in connection with our food, drugs, etc., taking it to mean "unsullied." We get our food analysed, and assured a net return of 100 per cent. But when we speak of it being free from impurities, any ingredient which we would consider unfit for human consumption, and quickly discard it if found thus adulterated or contaminated. But we apply the attack the same importance to the feeding of the soul, which is fed and built up by means of our thoughts, of which our words and deeds are the outward expression. We speak of pure motives and who is there who does not realize how our transactions are judged by our neighbors as to whether they are done from a good or a selfish motive? Much good can be done to benefit our fellow-men and yet the motive behind is a selfish one, inasmuch as it is done for personal gain. Now absolute purity, I think, would embrace the other three "absolutes" employed by the O.G.M. because so long as there is a trace of selfishness, hatred, malice or envy, there cannot be absolute love, or trace of fraud, deceit or untruthfulness, there cannot be absolute honesty; or trace of pride, greed or intolerance, there cannot be absolute unselfishness. Therefore it stands to reason that we cannot have pure motives, but in the motive, for it is man that looketh on the outward appearance of actions, while God looketh on the motive of the heart. It is not every subject who is privileged to speak of it, though he may enjoy the effect of his influence; so as God is infinite and absolute, the study of absolute purity should be regarded as very necessary if we desire to eventually come in contact with our King, the absolute good. The same thought is expressed in Hebrews xii 14, regarding "holiness (wholeness) without which none can see the Lord." The writer of this editorial is not a believer in the use of supernatural powers.

By what assumption or justification does one say that such well-meaning growers are fighting for a bare existence, where pickers are working for a starvation pittance which, small as it is, is almost equal in proportion to that which the producer receives? Optimism is a wonderful thing, but it should be tempered by a bold recognition of facts along with other factors not politic to mention here.

Having been a fruit-grower for thirty-five years, the writer recognizes the difficult problems confronting us. But knows that better times will come in due course; growers can hasten the coming of a showing green by cohesion among themselves by supporting as in the past one Co-operative Association instead of three in Keating, which make us competitive and puts us at the mercy of the buyer. This Mr. Editor, is not a criticism of your editorial or comments therein because, based on information given, they were praised-worthy and therefore appreciated, but next time please do use the source of information.

H. E. TANNER.

A. PETERSHAGEN IS PRESIDENT

Everett Man to Head Luther League; Vancouver to Get Next Gathering

Alvin Petershagen of Everett, Washington, was elected president of the Northwest District Luther League at the Saturday afternoon session of the thirteenth annual gathering which was being held at the Grace Lutheran Church here.

Vancouver was selected as the city in which the fourteenth convention will be held next summer. Everett and Seattle made unsuccessful bids for the conclave. Mr. Petershagen succeeds Gladys E. Cundy of Seattle, who headed the league for the past year.

Other officers selected to help guide the league's affairs for the ensuing year included: Jeanette Franson, Seattle, vice-president; Irma Christensen, Seattle, corresponding secretary; Alice Campbell, Seattle, recording secretary; Melvin A. Metz, Seattle, treasurer; and Alice Brown, Seattle, historian. The executive will select the committee chairman and secretary.

Adoption of the annual reports from the various officers and local leagues was the chief business of the Saturday morning session. After the election of officers and the 1934 convention city in the afternoon, the delegates assembled for the convention picture, and then were taken on a sight-seeing tour of the city.

Rev. T. A. Jansen, pastor of Grace English Lutheran Church, presided at the annual dinner which was held in the church social hall. Rev. Otto A. Bremer, minister to the University Lutheran Church, Seattle, gave the chief address of the evening. His subject was "Follow the Leader or Playing the Game of Life."

Sunday the delegates attended the morning session of the Grace Lutheran Church, where Rev. C. J. Olson, Seattle, delivered the convention sermon entitled "In His Steps." A short conference on league affairs was held in the afternoon, after which the gathering was officially closed.

TAKES CAKE FROM CARDINAL

Old Irish Mary Watches Over His Eminence's Diet, Banning Rich Delicacy

New York, Sept. 5.—It is not of herself that old Irish Mary, Cardinal Hayes's competent housekeeper for thirty years, thought as she lay very ill with pneumonia.

Just before being arrested, she said, her Irish brogue sunk to a feeble whisper, "don't forget to make the Cardinal wear his heavy winter overcoat when he goes out. He'll catch cold sure, if he doesn't."

One of the Cardinal's favorite stories is about old Mary, whose devotion to his welfare is practically an obsession and often affords him much kindly amusement. On a strict diet at one time, the Cardinal served strawberry shortcake with whipped cream to two priests who were dining with him. He decided that one little piece wouldn't hurt him.

But he reckoned without old Mary. She was just outside the door, peering in. Before he could take a bite, she strode indignantly into the room. "Now Your Eminence, you know you can't have that," she scolded. And she took his plate right away from him and carried it out into the kitchen.

The moon always presents the same face to us; its period of axial rotation, twenty-seven days, seven hours, 43.2 minutes, is exactly equal to its time of revolution around the earth.

GIRL STUDENT GOING ABROAD

Miss Grace Parkinson of Vancouver Wins French Government Scholarship

Vancouver, Sept. 5.—Climaxing a brilliant scholastic career in Vancouver public and high schools and at the University of British Columbia, where she was graduated last spring with the Governor-General's gold medal for all-round proficiency in third and fourth year work, Miss Grace M. Parkinson, twenty-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parkinson, of Vancouver, will sail from Montreal September 29 on the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford, en route to France for post-graduate work.

The French government's scholarship for excellence in the study of the French language which Miss Parkinson won at U.B.C. last year is taking her to the sorbonne for a year's course. She majored in French during her final years at the local university.

Winning scholarships was a habit with the Vancouver girl during her four-year arts course at U.B.C. In her sophomore year she took the McGill scholarship in French and English. In her third year it was the University of British Columbia scholarship for the highest scholastic standing of the year, and in her final year it was the French government scholarship which she won.

Miss Parkinson was scheduled to leave this week to join the Duchess of Bedford sailing Friday from Montreal, but a last-minute illness interfered with those plans. She will tour eastern Canada before sailing for France.

Swimming and diving are chief athletic recreations of the clever Vancouver girl, who has been a notable competitor in Howe Sound and other British Columbia regattas.

KING CAROL MAY WED COMMONER

PRINCESS HELENE

MAGDA LUPESCU

ZIZI LAMBRINOS

Reports that King Carol of Roumania is planning to marry Mrs. Magda Lupescu, red-haired beauty for whom he once gave up his queen and his throne, are current in London, where it is believed in diplomatic circles that such an occurrence would result in the king again losing his throne. Carol's affairs of the heart have occasioned no little grief to his subjects since his first escapade in 1918, when he eloped and married Zizi Lambrinos, a commoner, in Odessa, Russia. His marriage to Princess Helene, following annulment of his first venture, came to grief when he fled the country with Mme. Lupescu. Helene divorced him, and his son, Michael, ruled as king until Carol returned in 1930.

YOUR BABY and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

SOME TIME-SAVING SUGGESTIONS
Every mother enjoys hearing the experiences of other mothers. I appreciate hearing from the parents of babies who have not any problems as well as those who have. Mrs. R. A. M. says she cannot refrain from writing about "her baby and the short cuts she has used in his life."

"He weighed eight pounds eight ounces at birth, and at nine months weighed twenty-three pounds, and has eight teeth," Mrs. R. A. M. writes. "I do all my own work, including the laundry and do it the best, quickest and easiest way. Our idea is that baby comes first, parent second and house last."

"His daily schedule is as follows: Wakes at 5.30, has his bottle, then plays until 7 a.m. He sleeps one and one-half to two hours, has his bath, cereal and bottle, and sleeps two and one-half hours more. At 2 p.m. he has cod liver oil, one vegetable, one fruit and his bottle. At 4 p.m. I give him orange juice. After a powder rub and his bath at 5.30 p.m., he eats three graham crackers, takes his bottle and goes to bed for the night."

"I have put him on the toilet after every bottle since he was five months old, and he averages one soiled diaper a week. He was nursed until five months of age, then had a supplement bottle, part of the time certified milk and following a trip, evaporated milk. He now gets three ounces of evaporated milk, five ounces of boiled water and one teaspoonful of dextrin."

TIME-SAVERS
"I save time on his cooking. I use a double boiler exclusively for his food. I cook his vegetables and fruits in parchment cooking papers in the lower half at the same time as I cook his cereal in the upper portion. After vegetables and fruits are cooked I put them through a ricer and pour them into small sterilized jars and use them for two days. I warm them right in the jars in hot water and they never have a warmed-over taste."

"We have a swing, high chair, play pen and crib for him, and we put him in different places and keep our eye on him, and we seldom find it necessary to hold him in order to entertain him. More power to the mothers who are sensible enough to have a schedule and stick to it."

EX-PRINCE TO WED ITALIAN

Associated Press
Madrid, Sept. 5.—Usually reliable Monarchist circles report that a marriage has been planned between Juan Carlos, twenty, son of ex-King Alfonso of Spain, heir pretender to the Spanish throne, and Princess Maria, nineteen, daughter of the King of Italy.

Juan Carlos became heir pretender after themorganatic marriage of his elder brother, the Prince of the Asturias, and Edelmira Sampedro, daughter of a Cuban merchant, on June 21. The second son, Jaime, is a deaf mute, and thus the pretenderhip went to Juan Carlos.

The marriage of the Spaniard prince is understood to have been decided by the king of Italy, who is serving as a courtesy cadet in the British Navy.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

The Shining Talent

By ELEANOR EARLY

(Copyright, 1929, by NEA Service Inc.)

"An unprejudiced person reading that article called unprejudicedly by the defendant," declared the judge. "As a newspaper woman you have no right to be anything but impartial in what you write. It is a serious offence, and frequently merits a fine, or a jail sentence. In view, however, of the evident conspiracy among Mandelino's friends, I am inclined to deal leniently with your own offense."

"Wherever it was who sent the paper containing your story to Jurymen Flagger, communicated the fact to attorneys for the defense. They promptly demanded an investigation, and I have questioned Mr. Flagger. He admits having read the article, and declares that he is now predisposed to find the defendant guilty. In view of his sworn statement, I must call a mistrial."

The judge stopped speaking, and Molly raised her flushed face to meet his judicial gaze, fixed sternly upon her.

"I'm fearfully sorry," she stammered. "There isn't anything I can say, I've no defense, no excuse."

He regarded her more kindly. "Allow me to commend your civility, Miss Burnham. It transcends your indication. It is uncommonly gallant when a person brought to accounting declines to transfer the responsibility for the offense to the other party."

Molly shook her head. "I write my own stories," she insisted. "Mr. Wharton is not responsible."

Judge Brewster rose, and his black robes billowed solemnly about him. "That is all," he said. "Except that I should advise you, Miss Burnham, for your own good, to be more careful in the future. Gunmen execute fearful reprisals."

Slim was waiting when Molly left the judge's chambers.

"It's all right," she said. "I'm not going to jail."

But Slim was in a dark mood. "Maybe you'll get shot," he hazarded. "Maybe you'll be better off in jail than out. You can't get at you if you're behind the bars."

"Oh, Slim, stop! You make my blood run cold. Have you phoned the office? Judge Brewster is declaring a mistrial."

"Sure. I gave them that ten minutes ago. Wharton's up in the air. The publisher has been giving him the devil. I guess, and he says for you to keep out of the office until he sends for you. Want the thing to blow over before you show up? I guess. Talk about getting all the breaks! You pull a gag you ought to get sent to jail for."

And what do you rate? A vacation? Molly laughed light-heartedly. "The dreadful cloud had lifted. The dark fear was all dispelled. She felt happy and gay."

"It was a little dinner party," she thought. "Not any of the crowd from the office. I'll ask Rita and Bob, and Ruth and Zip. It will be like old times to be with them again."

She telephoned from the courthouse, and reached Rita at Miss Mayhew's. Rita said that she and Bob would love to go. They had talked of dropping in that evening anyhow. It was such ages since they had seen Molly.

But Ruth said she didn't feel well. Besides, Zip was busy at the office, and sometimes he didn't get home until pretty late. It made things wretched, because they couldn't imagine what had come over her lately. Zip said she was like an old woman.

"You sound so unhappy, dear!" lamented Molly.

"Maybe you'd sound unhappy," replied Ruth reproachfully. "If you'd lost your little baby." . . . and Molly heard her sob before she hung up the receiver.

She felt as though she had been careless and unympathetic, and later that day she sent Ruth some flowers. It was a very successful small dinner. Molly's china was mostly Italian and so she planned an Italian meal.

They were sitting over their coffee when the bell rang. The finger that was ringing it pressed on the button, and held it maddeningly. Molly released the door, but the bell continued to ring. She called out her arms about her. But still the bell rang with unceasing insistence.

"Something's up. I'll see who it is," offered Bob.

He was gone for several minutes, and hearing strange noises in the hall, the girls went to investigate. Bob was propelling a man up the stairs—a man who waved his arms about and was making dreadful sounds.

"It's Zip!" cried Rita.

"Zip? But Zip doesn't drink. What's the matter, Bob? What's the matter with Zip?" she demanded.

Bob was trying to quiet him. "Here, Zip, that's no way to act. Get yourself in hand, can't you, old man?"

"Is he drunk, Bob?"

Bob shook his head. Then Zip recognized Molly. He flung himself away from Bob, and threw his arms about her. He was crying like a child.

"Get him upstairs," Bob was saying. "The jailer thinks he's drunk."

CHAPTER XV

Bob put his arm about his wife's shoulders, and reached for Molly's hand.

"Ruth's dead girl," he said. "Poor little kid."

you and Bob stay with Zip? I want to phone Jack."

It took some minutes to put through the call, and when at last she heard his voice, she felt that she was going to faint. She raised her hand, shakingly, and pressed her cold fingers against the quivering column of her throat.

"Oh, Jack," she cried, "Ruth is dead . . . and I want you!"

"Dead?" he exclaimed incredulously. "An accident, Molly?" And then, agitatedly, lower-like, "Are you all right? You're not hurt?"

"Oh, it wasn't an accident, dear. Heart failure, I think. Zip is here now. He came a few minutes ago. We've just heard."

"You're sure you're all right?" he interrupted. "You're telling me the truth, Molly?"

"Jack, darling, of course I'm all right! But poor Ruth. And poor Zip. She choked back her tears, the feeble impulse of women to be weak when they would be strong."

"Poor Ruth!" he repeated. "Lord, that's tough! How's Zip taking it?"

"Oh, dreadfully," she moaned. "He's simply all broken up. Listen, Jack, I want you more than I've ever wanted you before. Can you come over?"

"Why, of course I can. Surest thing in the world, Sweetheart. I can make the midnight trip."

"But it's after 11 now," she reminded him.

IRVING BERLIN'S START RECALLED

Ragtime King's "Discoverer" Dies; Restaurant Where He Sang to Be Revived

Chinese Bankers and Importers Revealed as Financiers Behind Dine, Dance Palaces

A Theme Song for the New Deal
Irving Berlin's "Discoverer"
Ragtime and Chop. Suesy
Making Hot Spots. Pay
Owns the Night Clubs. Gossip of Broadway.

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Sept. 5.—Broadway is popularly supposed to be peopled by a lot of sentimentalists, but sometimes it forgets individuals who have played important but obscure roles in its development as a Gay Way. The other day, for instance, there were small items about the death of a "retired sportsman" named Henry Watterson at his summer estate near Saratoga Springs.

As a matter of fact, Watterson was the discoverer of Irving Berlin, and thus was partly responsible for the change in tempo of popular music.

In the days when Berlin was a pretty terrible performer and absolutely unknown as a composer, he was making the rounds of Tin Pan Alley with his first pieces, and being laughed out of the very best offices. . . . Watterson, who had managed the Crystal Palace Theatre and then become a music publisher in a small way, decided that ragtime had a chance of catching on, so he accepted Berlin's early efforts.

Then came "Porando," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and others; also the firm of Watterson, Berlin and Snyder. . . . In 1912 Berlin broke away and formed his own company.

THAT WAS CHINATOWN

Incidentally, one of the places where Irving Berlin used to sing in those early days is going to be revived. It's the Manhattan, in Chinatown, bright and romantic spot of the Bowery some twenty-five years ago. George White, to-day's producer of the Scandals, danced there too, and there were many others. The waiters all wore queues. Then came "Porando," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and others; also the firm of Watterson, Berlin and Snyder. . . . In 1912 Berlin broke away and formed his own company.

For all that, the district could use another good restaurant. Right now the Port Arthur and the Chinese Delmonico's are about the best, most of their erstwhile rivals have moved up to the Broadway belt, and right into the capitalistic clutches of Messrs. Chin and Lee. . . . These two gentlemen have taken over the old Chinese restaurant, and are now selling chow mein and chop suey, which they deliver regularly to hundreds of restaurants and also sell in the numerous places they have come by to own by now. Chin and Lee live in Greenwich Village instead of Chinatown. And, by the way, neither of them ever eats chop suey or chow mein.

Most of the dance-and-dine places are controlled by syndicates of Chinese bankers and importers, who also deal largely in the kitchen concessions of night clubs and restaurants. You'd be surprised, in fact, to know how many awfully hot-spots have been financed entirely by Chinese capital.

The first major invasion of Broadway by the chop suey men was when the Palais Royale became the Palais D'Or. Many of the best bands in the country to-day played there at one time or another—Guy Lombardo, Paul Whiteman, B. A. Rolfe, Ted Lewis, Ted Waring and so on. The place prospered and it still does—and the Chinese proprietor now goes under the name of Mr. D'Or. . . . Next to feel Oriental domination was the old Delmonico's at Forty-eighth Street and Broadway. It always had failed disastrously under four different night club managements, and once had borne the name of Paul Whiteman. But the Chinese made a success of it from the start.

A KISSING MARATHON—IN THREE LAPS

They are in a tight squeeze, to be sure, but these boys and girls did not mind the spotlight and stares when they battled for honors in a kissing contest—the first ever staged—at Coney Island's Luna Park, in New York. They just did it for the love of it. Anyway, this was the scorching scene as the umpire cast an all-embracing glance over the field as the contestants passed the thirty-minute mark.

NOISES, STRAINS AND WORRY OFTEN PRODUCE FATIGUE

Glands, Too, Are Blamed for "That Tired Feeling"

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

There seems to be no doubt but that light, noise and vibration, associated with the development of numerous machines in our modern lives have become important factors in producing more general fatigue.

For example, the driving of an auto involves constant subjection to all these factors. The human body is a sensitive organism, and the constant vibration and light, and the noise, more frequently than men, suffer with psychogenic fatigue.

When ambitions are thwarted, when one works constantly at an occupation in which he is little if at all interested, when conditions in the home are irritating and uninteresting, there may come a constant feeling of tiredness, passing on indeed in some cases to serious neurasthenia or psychasthenia.

Obviously, the important factor in the control of psychogenic fatigue is to find out the basic mental causes. It is only by an understanding of these causes that relief can be secured.

Navy League Chapter.—The monthly meeting of the Navy League Chapter, I.O.D.E. will be held at the headquarters, Union Building, on Friday afternoon at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to attend.

Piccadilly Is Now Longest Tube Line

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times
London, Sept. 5.—The Piccadilly line of the tube railway stretches from South Harrow to Cockfosters, now that the last section of its new extension is open. This is a distance of twenty-five miles, and makes it the longest underground railway in the world.

Work on the extension from Finsbury Park to Cockfosters—a rural "beauty spot" of former days—began three years ago. Some 3,000 men have been provided with employment, and the total cost has been some £5,000,000.

As each station has been completed, it has been struck off the list of "beauty spots" and immediately put into use. Altogether, it has been necessary to build four and a half miles of twin tunnels, not to mention viaducts, banks, cuttings and so on.

A speed of three miles in five minutes is now attained on some sections of the Piccadilly line.

Cockfosters, by the way, had one claim to fame—if a slender one—before it was brought into the public eye by the building of the Tube.

The grandfather of Dick Turpin, the most famous of all the eighteenth-century highwaymen, is said to have been the landlord of the "Red Lion" inn, an inn not far from where the Underground now runs.

Improvements are being made by the Central London Railway at Chancery Lane, where they are building a new booking office under the Holborn thoroughfare.

In consequence post-office engineers are at present engaged on the work of diverting and replacing about 300 cables, which carry "somewhat like 70,000 wires. And they are going to do it without interfering with a single telephone call.

"It means," one of the chief engineers of the post office explains, "that we have to shift a great deal of our main trunk lines, and the cables are on a very important route, serving not only private subscribers' junctions and tolls, but also the trunk lines to the West of England.

"It will be done by supplying alternative cables over another route while the replacement is in progress. The work will go on uninterruptedly day and night and will take nearly a year to complete."

THE END OF THE PARCELS TUBE
Apart from this great effort by the engineers, the work will mark the end of what for a time was one of London's wonders. It will mean the disappearance of a section of the old parcels tube which was constructed more than seventy years ago.

The tube was built for the purpose of shooting parcels by means of compressed air from St. Martin's-le-Grand Post Office to Euston Station.

It was experimented with for some years, but was not very successful. It lay derelict for some years and the post office took it over and laid the present cables. The railway improvements make it necessary to close this tube, and a new subway which runs almost parallel with the tube has been provided.

ETON HEADMASTER SAYS FAREWELL

Dr. Aldington's Thoughts in Good-bye Sermon Go Back to Early Days

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times
London, Sept. 5.—Dr. Cyril Aldington has said goodbye to Eton College. He will take up his appointment as Dean of Durham, for which he had resigned the headmastership of Eton, in about a month.

When he preached his farewell sermon in Upper Chapel, he recalled how he had seen the chapel during the thirty-four years he had known it.

"I am going to look into the glass of memory," he said. "I see myself entering the chapel for the first time, so young and ignorant that I admired the paintings on the windows."

"Then I see myself very timidly mounting the pulpit to preach my first sermon."

"Then I see the chapel as it was when I returned as headmaster. I see it plunged into darkness when the electric light went out . . . and how in the darkness I told you the terrible story of the downfall and death of the Russian Czar."

"But my glass must be able to give back sound as well, and I hear from those early days the voice of Dr. Hornby saying 'I should like to tell you that it was a good sermon.' I remember Lionel Ford saying to me one day in my first half when I was thinking of shirking chapel, with his characteristically diffident voice, 'I always think it is such a good plan to make a rule to go every day, and I do not think I have willingly been absent since.'"

"I remember the Wednesday evening services; how during the war when the chapel was half-filled with those praying for their fathers and brothers at the front, and how week by week I had to read out the list of those who had died."

"I want you to know how much I love the sounds connected with the chapel, from the footfall of the first boy who comes in at ten minutes to the last final scuffle of the choir boys."

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Janet Gaynor, leading American screen star, and Henry Garat, premier film player of Europe, are said to be setting new standards in motion picture entertainment in "Adorable," the Fox production, now playing at the Playhouse Theatre. They are supported in this outstanding picture by C. Aubrey Smith, Herbert Mundin, Blanche Friderici, Stuart Holmes, Albert Conti, Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, Esther Munn, Hans von Twardowski, Peter Dinklage, Barbara Bonney, Sterling Holloway and Joe Carter.

When Director Lloyd Bacon uses hair tonic in a picture he wants real hair tonic that smells. In making his latest Warner Bros. production, "Picture Snatcher," which is at the Empire Theatre, James Gagny objected to the use of a particular odoriferous tonic on his head.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

ALBERTA TO MOVE FARMERS

Plan to Transfer People From Arid Area to Northern Region, Says Dr. Kerr

Visiting University of Alberta Professor Finds Confidence Is Returning

There is a movement afoot in Alberta to transfer people from certain areas in the southeast section of the province, which because of uncertain rainfall are unsuitable for successful farming operations, to the district north of Edmonton, on an east and west line, according to Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, Dean of the Faculty of Arts, University of Alberta.

Admirable farming conditions prevail in the northern sections of Alberta and also in the Peace River country and consequently the transfer of farming communities to more productive areas is expected to prove beneficial all round, said Dr. Kerr in an interview at the Empress Hotel to-day.

Excellent rains have recently fallen in the northern part of the province and the crops have been in good shape. Around Edmonton, he said, it was as green as England's lea. The unfavorable growing districts are in the southeast in the region of Hanna.

BETTER SPIRIT

"When I left Edmonton for the Coast," said Dr. Kerr, "I found confidence returning and a better spirit was evident. The increased price of wheat, combined with economical seeding, has produced a more favorable situation."

Dr. Kerr is now a visiting professor at the University of Alberta. He is the son of a farmer of the prairies as it used to be said. He is not a farmer himself, but he is a student of the natural state, and furthermore, agronomists produced grain which now ripened earlier.

"In beating frost at harvest time," he said, "it used to be a question of days and was often a breathless matter. Now it is different. Frost does not seriously worry the farmer these days."

Dr. Kerr is spending a vacation in Victoria with Mrs. Kerr before the opening of the fall term of the university late this month. He said a larger enrollment than in the last winter and summer sessions was expected. "We have had our appropriations cut, as in the case of other institutions, but we feel that the province is thoroughly in sympathy with our work," he said.

It was difficult to forecast registration at this time, but he believed there would be no serious diminution in attendance at the opening of the coming term.

R.C. STUDENTS THERE

Dr. Kerr stated there was a large number of students from British Columbia at the University of Alberta. These students were chiefly studying medicine and law, which subjects are not taught at the University of British Columbia. It was the tendency, he said, not to overlap in certain subjects at universities in close proximity to each other. "I think it is a very good system," he concluded.

INQUEST INTO DEATH IN WELL

Coroner's Jury at Duncan to Hear of Tragedy of Victoria Girl

At St. Joseph's Hospital this morning the death occurred of James Herbert Pottinger, fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Pottinger, 70 South Turner Street. He was born in Victoria and is survived by his parents, one brother and one sister, his eldest sister, Clara, predeceasing him seven years ago. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

The body of Miss Lilley was found in an abandoned well on the old Lilley farmstead last Friday. She had been missing several weeks.

The fact that the top of the well where the body was found, was covered with planks when Charles Eccleston, a sheep herder, made the discovery, at first put an air of mystery about the case, but investigators pointed out that the planks might easily have been replaced by a passerby who did not notice the body.

The police are leaving nothing to supposition in the investigation, however, and Inspector J. F. C. Vance, Vancouver analyst and crime detector, will assist in the case. He will endeavor to determine if drowning was the cause of death or whether there was any foreign matter in the body which would hint at foul play.

No trace has been found of any other person at the farm when the tragedy is believed to have happened.

It is expected the inquest, which will start in Duncan this evening, will be adjourned until Inspector Vance is ready to make his report.

DEATH REMOVES G. W. NEWTON

Head of Local Advertising Agency Dies After Operation; Funeral Tuesday

Funeral services for George Walter Newton, head of the Newton Advertising Company, who passed away Saturday evening, will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel. Following the service the remains will be forwarded to Vancouver for cremation.

Mr. Newton had been in poor health for some time and on Monday of last week underwent a serious operation in the Jubilee Hospital, from which he failed to rally, the end coming on Saturday evening.

Born in London, England, nearly fifty-one years ago, Mr. Newton came to Canada in 1907, and was at first associated with the Northern Pacific Railway as private secretary to William Albee, superintendent. Later, he joined the staff of The Daily Colonist, in the advertising department. In 1908 he organized the Newton Advertising Company, and continued as its director until his death.

SAANICH TAX SALE OPENS

Twenty-four Parcels of Land Sold During Opening Hours of Sale To-day

Twenty-four parcels of land were disposed of to early buyers when the Saanich tax sale opened at Royal Oak this morning. The parcels sold were small, however, and netted a total of only $531.

A large portion of the lots formerly on the list were redeemed two hours before the sale opened this morning.

So great was the last-minute rush to redeem the property that the municipal hall officials had to place several members of the staff on the job of reversing the lists as the redemptions were made in order to start the sale on time.

The amount of property sold is not quite as high as that sold during the opening of last year's sale, but the totals are expected to compare favorably when the 1933 sale concludes. It will continue to-morrow.

NONAGENARIAN DIES

MAYOR GIVES RELIEF DATA

Makes Personal Inquiry Into Complaints Laid Before Council

Inquiry Into Administration Here Is Scheduled For Next Week

Owing to the absence of the relief officer on vacation, the investigation of the city relief department administration ordered by the City Council last Friday will not take place until next week at the earliest. Mayor Leeming announced this morning.

At the same time the mayor, who has made a personal investigation of remarks made at Friday's meeting issued a statement of facts relative to the question, which, he said, he hoped would clear up any false impression conveyed by aldermen at the meeting.

"It was stated," he said, "that Nanaimo had two men to handle relief for 600 men. I have made direct inquiries to the city clerk there and learn that in July the Nanaimo relief was for 223 families, 135 single men and fourteen single women. The total cost was $4,508, or an average of $20.22 per family. Nanaimo pays no rents and all relief is given in cash, eliminating a lot of the detail in clerical work."

"The relief department work there is handled by the city engineer, the time-keeper, the sanitary inspector, the clerk, treasurer and a stenographer. When extra help is needed, unemployed men are used."

"The unemployed there work for all relief, and practically all the maintenance work of the city is done by relief workers, only a small staff of regular maintenance men being on the payroll."

The mayor also made inquiries from the Vancouver relief office which has 163 persons employed in administration.

The administration cost is 7.8 per cent of the total and handled, in July 2,800 families, at an average cost of $23, Vancouver, he said, is not giving any work to relief men and the necessity of keeping records on this account is eliminated.

The average cost per family in Victoria during July was $22.64, the mayor said. "I would also like to point out that a representative from the auditor-general's department at Ottawa inspected our system last spring and his report was congratulatory."

Payroll records at the City Hall show that Victoria's relief department started in January, 1932, with fifteen employees. This increased to twenty in March and two more had been added by September.

The payroll shows twenty-five persons now employed directly and indirectly through the office, but in recent months the work of social services, including mother's pensions has been handed on to this department.

Bob Morrison Wins City Amateur Golf Championship At Uplands

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Southpaws Are Stealing Spotlight in Athletic World.

Hubbell, Gehrig, Whitehill And Grove Baseball Left-handers.

Baseball's New "Who's Who" Greatest Volume Of Its Kind.

SOUTHPAWS have been stealing the spotlight in athletics during recent months. They began with baseball, the quaint fellows who throw with their left hands are dominating in the pennant races in the National and American Leagues. Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants has come up with just the margin the club needs to keep it on top of the National. Wrong-handed hurlers are leading the parade in the American. Lefty Grove of the Philadelphia Athletics, of course, is the greatest of them all. Earl Whitehill has been doing the wonderful sort of work that the Washington Senators need to win the flag. Vernon Gomez remains the bright spot of the New York Yankees' hurling staff.

Southpaws have knocked the records all askew. Hubbell broke the National League mark for the number of scoreless innings pitched. Lefty Grove was the first pitcher to shut out the Yankees in more than 300 games. Lou Gehrig, left-handed first baseman, broke the consecutive games string longed up by Deacon Scott.

In the land of featherweight champion Freddie Miller as featherweight champion, one of those who reverse the odds and the odds against him. Young Corbett, who recently won the welterweight title from Jackie Fields, only to lose it to Jimmy McLarnin, is an example in this class. Lou Brodhead, left-handed French Canadian fighter, came on to win the middleweight championship by defeating Ben Light.

In the light of this evidence, the left hand cannot be disregarded. It is a nice hand to have around.

Harold Johnson, the man Kid Gleason used to call "Speedy," has turned out what is undoubtedly the greatest baseball volume ever compiled. And when you look over the ponderous pile of information in this latest "Who's Who" it is not hard to understand why the Kid called the veteran writer "Speedy."

In a few months Johnson, assisted by Harry Neely, a number of sports writers and desk men, has pulled together a huge history of the game with pictures and sketches of the stars of to-day and yesterday.

In order to obtain accurate information, Johnson and his staff, working in Chicago, issued and edited thousands of questionnaires. The result is a book nearly a foot tall, of 545 pages, with 700 half-tone illustrations.

The parade is complete. Storied characters who marched through baseball's early years—Radbourn, Knute and others—are sketched together with modern heroes of the diamond. All the colorful old legends of whom the boys in the back room like to read, such as Bill Donovan, McGinnity, Waddell, Joss and Alexander, are there, in the flesh.

The story of baseball is traced in the new "Who's Who" in an intimate human way, from its inception to the present day when the major league clubs have a book value of more than $50,000,000.

Johnson has put his twenty-five years of hobnobbing with ball players to a splendid use in his valuable new reference and authority for the fans.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Jimmy Johnson was the fellow who showed Benny Leonard how to beat the greatest left-handed fighter who ever lived. . . . Left-handed players are rare. . . . Left-handed soup-splitters are more common. . . . and, by the way, why do they call it a left hand?

FIGHT RESULTS

Rallies To Beat Harold Pretty In Final By 5 and 4

Comes From Behind After Being 1 Down at Lunch to Take Third Crown

Fred Pearce Jr. Class B Winner

Young Pretty, Playing in First Major Final, Makes Great Showing

Bob Morrison, Uplands, won the city amateur golf championship for the third time over his home course yesterday but only after one of the stiffest fights in his colorful career. In the thirty-six-hole final Morrison turned back the determined threat of Harold Pretty, seventeen-year-old Uplands junior, 5 and 4. Pretty, playing in his first major final and before his first gallery, battled the experienced Morrison hole for hole until the twenty-fifth, when he went one down and was never able to get even again, finally losing the match on the thirty-second green. The match played under ideal weather and with the course in perfect shape, attracted a large holiday gallery.

Uplands Club when P. Pearce Jr. defeated G. Townsend, George Vale, 3 and 2 in the eighteen-hole final. The first flight in the senior championship was won by Jimmy Todd, George Vale, who defeated Norman Wallace, Macaulay, 2 and 1.

MAYOR PRESENTS PRIZES
Following the Morrison-Pretty final, the prizes were presented to the various winners by Mayor Leeming, who congratulated the victors on their splendid performances.

Morrison by his victory regained the crown he held in 1929 and 1931. He did not defend the championship last year.

Although the final ended on the thirty-second green, Morrison and Pretty agreed to play out the remaining four holes as an exhibition. Morrison continued to shoot par-birdie golf and finished the round with a score of 67, which equaled the Uplands record in competition held by Morrison.

On his afternoon round Morrison had seven threes, six on the last nine, and a duce. Morrison's five birdies on the round, and his one on the other two holes was a single stroke above perfect.

He was out in 35, par for the hole, and back in 32, three under par. Pretty's card for the afternoon was a 77, 38 going out and 39 coming back.

This gives an indication of the brilliant and steady play of Morrison in the afternoon. This younger, another of the "kids" developed through the efforts of the directors of the Uplands Club, on a commendable performance.

He hit his shots on the precision of a veteran and during the entire match showed no signs of nervousness although he was to be congratulated on his showing. Morrison, when on his game, is a tough opponent for the best. Experience and his ability to take advantage of the breaks played no small part in his victory.

TERRIFIC HITTERS
Morrison and Pretty were on about an equal-off the tee. Both are terrific hitters and their drives averaged around 260 yards, although several times they were well past that mark.

Pretty was his best in the morning round when he thrilled the gallery by securing a four-hole lead on Morrison at the thirteen-hole mark. However, Bob rallied after securing a half on the fourteenth and when a half was called for lunch he had won back three holes to reach the halfway mark.

On the afternoon round Morrison put his hole-in-one into more trouble than on the morning, but he showed his ability by pulling off any number of sensational recovery shots. Many of them were very good, but they came off in the majority of cases. But Morrison was "hot" and there was no holding him.

VICTORIA XI WIN EASILY

Wednesday Cricketers Have Large Margin Over Mainland Eleven

Nation and Moffat in Fine Last Wicket Stand; Latter Bowls Well

In a match featured by the performance of two local youngsters, the Victoria Wednesday League cricketers easily defeated Vancouver Wednesday at Beacon Hill Park yesterday.

Philip Nation and Robert Moffat staged a sterling performance, and between them put on enough runs to defeat the Vancouver side. Nation scored 67 and Moffat 32 in a last wicket stand for 99, out of a total of 219 runs for the team.

The mainlanders knocked off only 98 all out.

In addition Moffat's bowling proved deadly to the visitors, and he took six wickets. The Victoria captain, Doug Fletcher, the Victoria captain, won the toss and elected to go into bat. Shrimpton and Pender combined for 35 runs before the former's wicket fell, after he had made fourteen runs. Pender batted a creditable 38 before he was out. Parkinson, the Vancouver bowler, had the only luck with the Victoria wickets during the first part of the innings, taking the first six.

At the luncheon adjournment the score was 148, Atwell 12 and Nation 23 being left at the wickets. Atwell was bowled first ball after lunch and then Moffat joined Nation. They batted hard for more than an hour together, and added 71 runs before Nation was clean bowled by Dickie.

HITS TWO BOUNDARIES
H. and A. Smith opened for Vancouver, confidently hitting Pender's deliveries. A. Smith getting two boundaries for the first over before being bowled by Atwell at 11. H. Smith stayed half an hour and then Moffat joined Nation. They batted hard for more than an hour together, and added 71 runs before Nation was clean bowled by Dickie.

Victoria Cricket Team Gains Draw To Retain Trophy

Local Eleven Forces Stalemate Against Vancouver to Hold Flumerfelt Cup

VICTORIA WON FIRST FIXTURE

Reg Wenman and Les Gibbons Star For Victoria With Scores of 84 and 81

Vancouver, Sept. 5.—Five runs decided the destination of the inter-city Flumerfelt cricket trophy in the return encounter between Vancouver and Victoria at Brockton Point yesterday. Holding down Vancouver's forcing batsmen in the final ten minutes of play the Islanders forced a draw and return to the Capital City in possession of the silverware.

Percy Payne, Victoria's veteran skipper, led his team to victory in the previous inter-city match July 1, and as a reward for his successful leadership, the trophy will adorn his mantelpiece for the ensuing twelve months.

PLAYED IN RAIN
A continual drizzle of rain delayed a start until a few minutes before 2 o'clock. Victoria batted first and lost Sparks and Pite cheaply, the early disaster paving the way for Reg. Wenman and Gibbons in a prolific run-getting partnership, carrying the score to 168 for three wickets. Gibbons profited by a "sitter" given to Broadfoot at square leg, when his score stood at ten, but afterward played fine cricket.

ROUGH TREATMENT
Both Wenman and Gibbons handed the mainland bowlers some rough treatment during their stay at the ground. Wenman was clean bowled trying to pull a short one from Bullen and his partner's undoing came as the result of mistiming and lifting the ball in an effort to land the leather out of the ground for the third time.

Rivers, the mainland star left-arm bowler, was utilized for only two overs in the visitors' innings.

Declaring at 212 for nine wickets.

HAUSER HITS THREE HOMERS
Slugging Minneapolis First Baseman Has Total of Sixty-five For Season

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 5.—Joe Hauser, home run champion of organized baseball, elevated his standing yesterday as three drives from his slugging bat whistled over the distant barriers of St. Paul and Minneapolis baseball parks for his sixty-third, sixty-fourth and sixty-fifth circuit clouts of the season.

The Minneapolis first baseman, reigning since 1930 when he smashed out sixty-three such blows while with Baltimore International, broke that mark here with two drives over the outfield fences.

These two homers gave Hauser the distinction of being the first player ever to hit over that fence twice in one game.

RAIN HALTS PLAY IN U.S. TENNIS

Forest Hills, Sept. 5.—The second day of play in the men's United States tennis championships at the West Side Tennis Club yesterday was postponed until to-day because of rain.

An overnight downpour, which continued through the morning and gave little hope of abating, soaked the courts beyond any chance of play yesterday.

CLAIM VINES TO TURN PRO

Martin Piaz, French Professional, States U.S. Champion to Join Cochet

Paris, Sept. 5.—Martin Piaz, the French professional tennis star, declared yesterday that Ellsworth Vines, United States amateur champion, will join Henri Cochet in turning professional and meet in a Franco-American series of matches in the United States in January.

Vines, who is defending his American championship this week in the tournament at Forest Hills, recently was given a clean amateur bill by United States Lawn Tennis Association after an investigation in the report about his plans to turn professional. Vines denied he had any offers under consideration.

BERT PEARSON SPRINT WINNER

Hamilton Speedster Defeats Frank Nicks, Schoolboy Star, at Halifax

Halifax, Sept. 5.—Speed laurels for men were swept away from marliners yesterday by the youthful Bert Pearson, Hamilton, Ont., while Mary Vandervelt, New Liskeard, Ont., had to content herself with a half-triumph.

Pearson showed himself master over Frank Nicks, local schoolboy sensation, by capturing both 100 and 200 metre races, equalling the maritime record for the 110 and shattering it in the other event although hampered by a strong wind and heavy track. He flashed down the 100-metre course in eleven seconds in the 200 metre event he substantiated two-fifths of a second from the record of 22 2-5 established by Howie Ryan in 1930.

The 100-metre race for women saw Miss Vandervelt ahead of Aileen McLaughlin, Halifax, by a comfortable margin in the time of 12 4-5 seconds. However, the local sprinter defeated her Ontario rival decisively in the 200 metres by the fast time of 28 2-5 seconds, equalling the Canadian record set by Lillian May in 1931.

ANACORTES TAKE PAIR

Defeat Sons of Canada 4 to 3 and 8 to 3 in Holiday Baseball Games

Anacortes captured a double-header holiday baseball engagement with the Sons of Canada, senior league champions, at the Athletic Park yesterday by winning the morning game 4 to 3 and finishing on the long end of an 8 to 3 count in the afternoon.

Both teams turned in an excellent performance in the morning engagement but the second game was ragged. C. Boulton, shortstop for the visitors, made a name for himself when he successfully stole six bases in the two games. In the afternoon game the Sons used three pitchers, Haines, Jones and Musgrave, in a vain attempt to put an end to the batting orgy of the visitors.

Anacortes started the ball rolling in the first inning in a dead heat. The visitors came back in the first half of the third and added another tally while the Canucks chalked up two tallies in the last half of the fourth to get a one-run margin. Two runs for Anacortes in the sixth and seventh innings gave the visitors a one-run lead over the local boys. There was no scoring after that, although the Sons threatened in the eighth and ninth. Olson and Cann, opposing pitchers, each struck out six, issued two free passes apiece to the initial sack.

SECOND GAME
In the afternoon tussle the Sons had the services of three pitchers, but the visitors were on a scoring rampage and could not be stopped. Sending four men across the rubber in the initial canto, they took a lead that never was threatened. They added another run in the sixth and three more in the eighth, while all the Sons could do was three in the last half of the ninth. For a few minutes it looked as if the local squad would pull through in the final inning and cut down the visitors' score, but Olson, Anacortes star chucker, dug his toes in and eased himself out of a tough hole. Eight batters who came before him were sent back to the dugout without having connected while Jones and Musgrave each sent two men back and Haines one. Haines and Musgrave walked one batter each. Jones four and Olson one.

Allie McGregor called the balls and strikes for both games.

QUARTER-MILE RECORD
A record was also set in the men's quarter-mile, when Joe Addison of Victoria led a class field to the tape, winning in the fast time of fifty-three seconds. He beat his teammate, Ray Kersey, by three yards.

The feature event of the day that brought the big crowd to its feet was the quarter-mile relay between two teams of sprint stars running 110 yards each. Miss Thompson, T. Williams, Miss L. Palmer and Harold Wright caught Bob Osborne, Olive Gorton, Howard McPhee and Mary Frizell. Wright caught Miss Frizell at the tape, but lost the victory as he faltered. The judges announced a dead heat in the fast time of fifty and two-fifths seconds.

Following is the summary of results: Cross-country bicycle race, Lady Smith to Nanaimo, 1. Richard Duncan, 2. Jerry Ward, Victoria, 3. Lloyd Ward, Victoria. Time: 37 minutes 24 seconds.

Running broad jump, men—1. J. Hawthornthwaite, Nanaimo Mosquito Club; 2. E. Harmlinton, Victoria. "Y." Distance: 19 feet 14 inches.

Local Boys Win All Events From 100 Yards to Half a Mile and Take Relay

ADDISON SETS RECORD IN 440

Five Marks Broken and Three Tied at Big Up-island Gathering

Nanaimo, Sept. 5.—Five records were broken and three were tied at the fourth annual track and field meet held at the Central Sports Grounds, under the auspices of Post No. 3, Native Sons of B.C. here yesterday.

Cloudy skies and intermittent showers of driving rain failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the crowd or the athletes. Eighteen hundred people witnessed the meet.

Sprint stars from Victoria captured five of the main events. Joe Addison won the 100-yard open and the 440-yard open while Frank Gioia annexed the 220-yard dash. In the half-mile C. R. Cunningham of the Capital City showed the way. These three, with B. Rowe, combined in a team which won the mile relay.

Flame-haired Margaret Thompson, wearing the colors of the Nanaimo Mosquito Club sprang a surprise victory when she beat the Canadian champion sprinter, Miss Lillian Palmer, in the 100-yard dash. The two girls battled to four feet eleven and one-half inches and Miss Thompson cleared the bar on her third attempt.

Miss Bell, tiring visibly, and using the scissors style made a desperate effort on her last try, but was unsuccessful.

DUNCAN REPEATS WIN
Richard Duncan, fast Ladyship cyclist, repeated his win of last year, when he led a class field, the most of the way in a seventeen-mile sprint. Bell of Victoria was forced from the race at Waterloo, half way to the goal. When his rear tire blew out, Tesini, who was in the lead, found the race too hot and dropped out soon after the start of the race. The cyclists were bunched as they entered the grounds, and Duncan won by a scant yard.

Miss Thompson cleared the bar on her third attempt.

Parsons also won the hop, skip and jump, breaking the prevailing record by 3 inches at thirty-nine feet ten inches.</

Kermit Cameron and Graham of Vancouver Win Feature Events

Nearly 6,000 Persons Attend International Holiday Meet at Cordova Bay

Featured by the performances of Kermit Cameron and Guy Graham, Vancouver, Pacific Northwest outboard racing champion, the international outboard regatta, under the auspices of the Cordova Bay Recreation Club, was staged yesterday afternoon before nearly 6,000 persons, the largest crowd to ever witness an event of its kind in Victoria. So successful was the regatta that officials hope to make it an annual affair. The meet had the official sanction of the National Outboard Association.

The races provided plenty of thrills from beginning to end and concluded with the presentation of prizes by Reeve Crouch, Sanich, and dances at McMorran's and the Little Arctic pavilions. Piloting his powerful Johnson motor on the six-mile route in the event for "C" class hydroplanes, in nine minutes and twenty-five seconds, Cameron won the opening race for big motors with an average speed of thirty-eight and a half miles an hour. On the eighth lap, Cameron's motor stalled and he was forced to pull out of the race. Cameron won the opening race for big motors with an average speed of thirty-eight and a half miles an hour. On the eighth lap, Cameron's motor stalled and he was forced to pull out of the race.

Cameron also clipped off the three-mile race for "C" class motors in 4:57.2-3 to capture The Times Shield from a large field, defeating Jack Clark.

Nanaimo, and Chick Johnson, Nanaimo, by a wide margin, the latter two finishing second and third, respectively.

The crowd was also thrilled with the performance of Guy Graham, the Northwest champion, who topped the three and four-mile events for "C" class hydroplanes with his evasive. Graham completed the four-lap event in 5:55 and the three-mile race in 4:26, receiving a special award for the fastest race of the day.

The spectators were somewhat disappointed during the day, owing to the fact that Cameron and Graham were not matched in the same event in which they both had their motors tuned properly. In the two races won by Cameron, Graham had slight trouble with the spark of his engine, and although he completed one of the races, he was not able to develop full speed as he was not able to do later in the day when he won. After his second victory in the "C" class events, Cameron experienced trouble with his motor when the connecting rod broke and the motor caught fire.

JACK SMITH WINS
Jack Smith, Victoria, using a Johnson engine, was winner in all events for four horsepower motors and "B" class hydroplanes. He won the two-mile race for four horsepower engines, the three-mile for "B" hydro, and the four horsepower open. Smith won two of the three events without competition.

There was only one slight accident during the day, which occurred in the first race for the big motors. While rounding the first turn, Graham cut inside of Jack Beban, Nanaimo, and the speed of his boat sent him sliding across the water and on to the fin of Beban's boat. The bow of Graham's boat struck Beban's shoulder, but the Nanaimo boy was not seriously injured and was able to complete the day's programme.

The officials for the day were: President, George W. Russell; secretary, Fred Doherty; treasurer, George Holt; starters and referees, Sidney Pickles and Walter E. Adams; judges, William Murphy, K. C. and J. Rippon; timekeepers, P. Brogan, George Holt and C. Ellis; pit manager, Norman Grice; pick-up boats, Arthur Pickles and N. Findler.

The committees in charge were: Prize committee, C. Ellis and K. Cameron; reception committee, G. Russell, W. C. Moray, Fred Doherty, N. Norris, D. McAdie, N. Grice; finance committee, V. Bennett, G. Holt, C. Ellis; beach and raft committee, Bob Kellow, Don Kellow, Ernie Stringer, John Bray, Bill Anderson, Lawrence Toms, Dave Martin and Len Kellow; programme committee, Jack Smith, K. Cameron and B. Davis; announcer, C. Kellow; recorders, Miss Eugene Doherty, Miss P. Hughes and Miss Peggy Brindley, Dr. D. W. Graham, attending physician; Miss E. Birtwistle and Mrs. K. I. Forrest, nurses in charge.

THE WINNERS
The results follow:
4 h.p. hydroplanes, two laps, for Aaronson Cup—1, Jack Smith, time 12:7.1-10.
"C" hydroplanes, three laps, for The Times Shield—1, Cameron, Victoria, 4:57.2-3; 2, Jack Clark, Nanaimo; 3, Chick Johnson, Nanaimo.

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 5.—Patrick Laughey has been unemployed since last November, when a packing company laid him off. His wife, Catherine, got a job in a laundry.

By strict frugality, the Laugheys, both natives of Ireland, go to the races at Fairmount Park. Yesterday, after much argument pro and con, they bought a $2 "daily double" ticket on Escobaland in the second and Judge Urgan in the third. Escobaland won and Mrs. Laughey almost fainted.

A few minutes later Judge Urgan came in first.

The Laugheys collected $1,507.22 and went home.

"It is grand," said Catherine. "The money will take care of us until Patrick gets a job again."

taking a four when he caught the trap to the left of the pin with his drive.

A half stymie cost Morrison the tenth hole, although he made a game attempt to hook around Pretty's ball and hole his putt. Pretty was up for the first time. Pretty then proceeded to give the gallery something to think about by taking the next three holes in a row to become four up. At the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth, Pretty had a trio of beautiful three, two of them at the twelfth and thirteenth being birdies.

MORRISON RALLIES
Both played the fourteenth badly, taking three putts apiece to finish up with sixes for a half. Morrison buckled down and cut into his opponent with a par four at the fifteenth to Pretty's five. The latter hooked into the rough with his drive. At the short sixteenth Morrison hit the green fifteen feet past the pin, while Pretty was short and in the rocks. Pretty chipped out six feet from the hole and when Morrison two-putted Pretty sank his for a half in three. Pretty caught a bunker to the left of the green and lost the seventeenth with a four to Morrison's three. This left Pretty 2 up. Morrison was straight down the fairway on the eighteenth while Pretty hooked his drive into a bunker, and was forced to chip out. This extra stroke cost him the hole, leaving Morrison one up at the end of the first round. Pretty had a medal score of 71, and Morrison a 73.

The afternoon round saw the pair open up with a string of halves, the first four holes being divided in 4, 5, 6, 3. Pretty got into trouble at the twenty-third when he sliced his second into the trap to the right of the green and rolled out far short. Morrison was well up and down the hole, while Pretty's hole and square the match. The twenty-fourth was halved in four, and the twenty-fifth in five. At the latter Pretty laid Morrison a stymie and Bob tried to chip over, but missed by a fraction and had to be satisfied with a half.

The twenty-sixth saw Morrison get into the lead which he never relinquished until the finish. Both were even off the tee and Morrison placed his second on the green, while Pretty caught a trap and lost the hole with a five to Morrison's par four.

BEAUTIFUL SHOTS
Two of the finest shots of the match were seen at the twenty-seventh. Morrison placed his tee shot within three feet of the pin. Pretty stepped onto the tee and laced a sizzling drive inside Morrison's. It was at this point that one of the great acts of the game took place. Morrison sank his putt and then to the surprise of the gallery Pretty missed his, the ball stumping the cup. This left Morrison 2 up at the three-quarter mark.

The twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth were halved in par fours and threes. Sinking a fifty foot putt won Morrison the thirtieth and put him three up. This was a tough hole for Pretty to loose as he pulled a great chip shot from the right of the green to within two feet of the pin, only to see his opponent sink the long one, for his birdie three. Another three won Morrison the thirty-first and gave him a four-hole lead. Pretty was forced to take a four when he sliced to the left of the green and was short with his approach. The thirty-second saw the finish of the match. Pretty sliced into the trees on the dog's leg hole and after chipping out got into the trees again on the other side of the fairway to finish with a six, while Morrison was down in five after three putts. Although the match was over the finalists continued to the thirty-sixth.

The match was refereed by W. Wikie, Uplands captain.

New York Giants And Pittsburgh In Important Series

National League Leaders and Latest Challengers Open Five-game Battle

Pirates Whipped Reds Yesterday

Giants Kept Idle By Rain; Detroit and Cleveland in Double Triumphs

The National League drama moved to Pittsburgh to-day as Bill Terry's New York Giants swung west for the last time this year with at least two of the first division trailers hanging doggedly to what little chance remains of catching the leaders.

Duplicating the stirring scene that prevailed as the Giants battered back the bid of the Braves in Boston last week, the Pirates mustered every ounce of strength for the five-game series that will tell their tale for this season.

Seven and a half games back in second place, George Gibson's Buccaners can make it by riding the Giants and capitalizing on any damage that may be done to the New Yorkers by Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis.

Giants a day of rest yesterday. The Pirates made ready for the "crucial" conflict by edging in one game with Cincinnati before the rain poured down. Hal Smith turned in another of the masterful pitching performances the Pirates have been getting lately, winning 1 to 0 over St. John.

CUBS TAKE TWO
Chicago Cubs disposed of St. Louis twin ax, Dizzy Dean and Tex Carleton, to win both halves of a double header 6 to 4 and 5 to 2 and edge the idle Braves from third place by half a game.

The only activities in the American League that escaped the holiday down-pour were double headers in Detroit and Cleveland. The Tigers took two from the White Sox, 8 to 0 and 5 to 4, while Walter Johnson's courageous Indians twice thumped St. Louis Browns, 3 to 1 and 2 to 1.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Chicago, Sept. 5.—The Chicago Cubs rewarded a holiday crowd of 38,000 yesterday by winning both ends of a double-header from the Cardinals, 6 to 4 and 5 to 2, slipping into third place a few points ahead of the idle Braves.

The Cubs belted out the first victory over Dizzy Dean and the second over Tex Carleton.

A six-run cluster in the second inning of the first game was enough to dispose of Dean and give Guy Bush all the edge he needed.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 5.—Pittsburgh's Pirates eased up to within seven and a half games of New York Giants yesterday as they prepared for a five-game series opening here with the league leaders to-day by taking a single game from the Cincinnati Reds, 1 to 0.

The second game of what would have been a double-header was postponed summarily when rain that flooded down as Tony Thelenow punched a single to right to score Pie Traynor in the ninth with the winning run continued through the rest period between games.

First game—
St. Louis ..... 3 9 2
Cincinnati ..... 0 8 0
Batteries—Johnson and Hanson; Smith and Grace.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
Cleveland, O., Sept. 5.—Oral Hildebrand and Clint Brown kept St. Louis' bats well-scattered to allow only two runs in nineteen innings yesterday and Cleveland Indians took both ends of a holiday double-header from the Browns.

The tribe was forced into an extra inning to win a 3 to 2 victory in the first game and they took the handicap 2 to 0 in regulation time.

First game—
St. Louis ..... 2 8 2
Cleveland ..... 3 9 2

Detroit, Sept. 5.—Elden Auker, Rookie hurler, after several false starts finally scored a victory for Detroit yesterday, winning 5 to 4 over Chicago after Victor Sorrell had pitched the Tigers to an 8 to 0 win in the first game of a double-header. Sorrell allowed the Sox only four hits.

Wheat Forced Down By Holiday Pile-up Of Selling Orders

Winnipeg, Sept. 5.—Week-end accumulation of selling orders in the form of hedges from elevator interests proved too much for the buying power on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day, and prices at the close were 1/4 to 1/2 cent lower.

Export business during the day was good and this, with over-the-week-end sales, was estimated at more than 3,000,000 bushels. Deliveries from farms during the week-end, however, with the market closed for two days, resulted in a deluge of hedging orders to-day which outbalanced export buying and sent prices below Friday's finish.

October option at the close was only 1/2 cent removed from the "pegged" price at 70 1/2 cents, December finished at 72 and May at 77 1/2 cents. Com-binized hedging sales and export purchases made pit volume quite appreciable though trading was very orderly throughout, with the early minutes the only really active period.

Cash grains trading was dull and of a routine character. Coarse grains, with the exception of flax, which held a gain of more than three cents most of the day, all turned lower in sympathy with wheat.

Chicago, Sept. 5 (Canadian Press).—Disturbed by three days' accumulation of hedging sales from rural holders, both in Canada and this country, wheat values slid down about 2 1/2 to 3 cents. Wheat closed 1 3/4 to 2c under Friday's finish.

Heartbreaking Loneliness of Strange Girl in Big City—Can Older Man Fall in Love With Young Girl?

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of refined tastes, caring for music, art and literature. Too reserved to make friends easily, too liberal to appeal to the conservatives, too conservative to attract the radical, too independent to attract the man who likes the clinging vine. So for the four years in which I have lived in this city I have not made a single man friend.

I have always heard of the loneliness of big cities, but now I know how crushing that loneliness can be. I am so tired from the strain of work and attempted study, from the lack of sunshine and gaiety and trying to make ends meet that I have been wondering what it would be like to slip over the side of a ferry or swallow a little of that powder whose fatal "poison" grins at me every time I open the medicine chest. There must be thousands of girls like me. What do they do?

LOIS.

Answer: Speaking personally, for I, too, have been through that inferno of loneliness in the same great city in which you live, you summon all the courage and determination that is in you to your aid and you dig in and carry on, until by some miracle—that you never understand you win through. Suddenly, it seems to you, the people about you change. Hard, cold eyes look at you with a kindly glance. Silent mouths give you a welcome. The people with whom you are associated, and who have been strangers to you, turn friendly. Doors open to you, and you find yourself one of a warm, affectionate, human group.

But while it lasts there is no experience more terrible than the loneliness that everyone experiences who goes to a big city in which he or she has no friends or acquaintances. Among the memories upon which I shut the door is that of such an ordeal, when for weeks at a time I would hardly hear the sound of my own voice; when I starved for companionship as a beggar might starve for food; when I tramped the streets until my feet were blistered so that I might look upon my fellow creatures even if I could not speak to them, and when the hours at night in my lonely room seemed endless.

Solitary confinement is one of the worst penalties inflicted upon criminals, but is scarcely worse than the torture endured by one who is alone in a great city. Many people have not the strength to stand this loneliness, and the chief of police of New York once told me that loneliness sent more young girls to the bad than any other cause.

He said that girls from the country and small towns and other cities would come to New York and get a job. At home they were used to family life, they had their parties, their dates and their chums. In the city they were alone, with no one to speak to after office hours, with no pleasures and no amusements, and they fell easy victims to the men who picked them up off the streets and offered them a good time.

How to remedy this situation and provide some way in which the strangers of a great city can get in touch with congenial acquaintances, nobody seems to know. But no one will deny that some sort of social clearing house is a great and imperative need. There should be some sort of place where a young woman or a young man can go with letters of recommendation from their own home towns showing that they are decent and respectable, and where they can be introduced to other men and women who belong to their own class.

In your particular case, Lois, the problem of how you are to end your isolation is made more difficult by your personal idiosyncrasies. Especially by your reserve. You want friends, but you would have them make all the advances; you want them to cultivate you. Think how egotistic this is. What is there about you that would lead anyone to think it worth the trouble to break down your barriers and get at what is fine within you?

You need others more than strangers need you, so my advice to you is to take the initiative. There is no truer saying than that if we wish friends we must show ourselves friendly. Perhaps the reason that you do not attract people is because you do not fit in. You are not adaptable. You bristle with opinions and get into arguments. That makes the average person very tired, so put the soft pedal on your personal views and see if it does not make you a more agreeable companion. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Do you think that a middle-aged man who has grown children and a good, faithful wife can really fall in love with a young girl? Isn't it softening of the brain rather than love? Did you ever know of a case where a young girl ever really fell in love with an old man where it wasn't just a pretence to get his money? If it wasn't for breaking the heart of a wife, I would say let every old fool who thinks he is in love with a flapper get a divorce and marry her, and get a good dose of the medicine he needs. What do you think?

H. A. R.

Answer: I agree with you, H. A. R., that it would make a punishment that would fit the crime, as they sing in the "Mikado." For I have never known of a single case in which an old man has divorced a faithful wife in order to marry a young girl that has turned out happily, and in which the man did not bitterly repent the mistake he had made.

Many men around fifty go through a period of nervous mental irresponsibility. Up to that time they have been as domestic as the house cat, happy in their homes and satisfied with their wives, but suddenly all this is changed. They become bored with domesticity and long for freedom and adventure. They look at their wives and realize that they have lost their looks and grown old, but they delude themselves into thinking they themselves are still young.

There are not more forlorn creatures in the world than the old husbands of young wives that you see sitting on the sidelines at night clubs, cabarets and restaurants, waiting to pay the bill. And only good to pay the bill. DOROTHY DIX.

Lore of Precious Gems

BIRTHSTONES AND CROWNS

During the long, long history of the earth, Nature has produced many stones which have been treasured for their beauty. Men have found them, and have given them the name of "gems" or "precious stones."

If those who made up the lists had agreed, we might have more confidence in the "maxims" claimed for the birthstones! As examples of the claims, read these lines about January and February which appear in an old poem about birthstones:

"By those in January born, no gem save garnet should be worn; it will insure you constancy, true friendship and fidelity."

"The February born shall find sincerity and peace of mind—freedom from passion and from care. If the amethyst they will wear."

During the early part of the Middle Ages, it was common for the crowns of kings to be little more than circles of gold; but as time passed monarchs in Europe fell into the custom of wearing crowns studded with many jewels.

It is believed that Queen Victoria wore the most costly crown ever prepared for a monarch. Her crown contained a ruby as large as a hen's egg, a diamond of 300 carats, 2,783 other diamonds, eleven emeralds, sixteen sapphires and 277 pearls.

During a visit to the Tower of London, I saw a large collection of the British crown jewels—kept there for public display when not needed for a coronation or other royal ceremony.
